BALL CLUB TO HELP BATTERY

Proceeds from Sale of Booster Tickets Will Be Donated.

PROMINENT WOMEN AGREE TO ASSIST

Local Company is Badly in Need of Money to Meet Current Expenses.

With a very commendable spirit, the Fort Wayne Base Ball association has risen to the occasion and will very materially assist Battery B's company fund. The officers have very kindly offered to donate the proceeds of the sale of "Booster" tickets to the local artillery unit. The sale of the tickets will commence on Monday and will be handled by several young ladies of this city, under the chaperonage of a number of ladies who have consented to act as patronesses for Battery B.

Seeing what other cities have done for their batteries, Indianapolis with a fund of over $2,000, and Lafayette with nearly $2,500, local friends of the boys got busy late Wednesday afternoon with the above results. These tickets will be good for any game next week and as some good teams are scheduled all will get their money's worth. On several days added features will enliven the program.

The Majestic theater management has donated the use of that place for headquarters and Mr. John Essig will superintend the placing of the tickets. A meeting of all the ladies in the city who are willing to assist in the sale will be held at this place on Friday afternoon at 2:30 to place plans and complete the organization. It is hoped that a large number of the ladies of the city, particularly the young ladies, will attend this meeting and assist in this very worthy cause. Already assistance has been promised from the girls of the Red Cross, several of the "Aurora" Auxiliaries of G. A. R., Union Veterans legion, Sons of Veterans, Irish War veterans, King's Daughters and railroad organizations. A number of the individual workers, made the campaigns for the help of St. Joseph and Lutheran hospitals, such a success, have promised aid and will attend the meeting.

Need and Use of Fund.
That a company fund is one of the very valuable assets of a military company is well known by all who have served or who have studied military conditions. This is doubly true of the local command, as it is practically a volunteer organization, with no funds to start with. The Commercial club extended aid to recruiting the local units to the fullest extent of their resources. When this was exhausted about six weeks ago, the work was taken up by the men and officers of the battery at their own expense and at considerable sacrifice on their part. At that time Battery B had secured about 75 members. Today they have over 150 accepted by the medical ex-

Young Man is Given Promotion

ARTHUR F. BOVINE.

Arthur F. Bovine, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bovine, 940 Cottage avenue, a member of the Eleventh United States cavalry, Troop K, has been promoted to corporal, according to word received from him by his parents. Bovine is one of the youngest boys to enlist from Fort Wayne. He entered the service on February 28 and has been promoted after serving only five months, which is very unusual. He is now stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

PREDICTED TROUBLE THAT ROCKS RUSSIA

Minister of Justice Saw Outbreak of Bolsheviks Coming.

Stockholm, July 19.—Monday's events in Petrograd and the extent of armed disaffection were forecast nearly a month ago by M. Perevloff, Russian minister of justice. In an interview with a correspondent of a Stockholm paper, he said:

"I am convinced that the Bolsheviks will soon carry their activities to a crisis, compared with which all their previous crimes will have been a mere trifle. When that day comes, and it will come soon, it will be time to make a final reckoning with this lawless element. We reckon that the Bolsheviks already have two machine gun regiments of desperate men who sleep with weapons beside their beds."

Monday's riots in connection with resignation of finance minister Shingarev, which is generally considered to indicate critical financial situation in Russia, caused a drop in the ruble exchange rate of four points to 69.

Active Bolshevik propaganda work is being conducted here, especially among returning Russian emigrants by various groups of Socialists.

One of them accompanied Robert Grimm, the socialist internationalist and German agent, from Switzerland, through Germany, to Russia in May. He was expelled from Russia as a result of efforts on the part of the German government to conclude a peace with Russia.

amir, with 18 on a list awaiting the examinations. All proceeds over the actual expenses of the campaign will be turned over to Captain Harry Clark, commanding Battery B. Among the many things needed in camp to make the life of the men more comfortable are wash tubs, wash basins, lumber for tent floors, wire netting for screening kitchens and mess shacks, ticks to be filled with straw for the men to sleep on, etc.

When it is considered that the allowance for "eats" is only an average of 30 cents per day it can very readily be seen that a few dollars to purchase vegetables, etc., is very acceptable.

As an example of the spirit of the men of the battery, it may be said that three of the non-commissioned officers of that unit have devoted their entire time for the past six weeks to recruiting work, with no remuneration for it, as the federal government does not start the pay of the men until after entrance into service. Printing, stationery, signs, etc., have also added to the expense.

It is believed that the public will be glad to assist the men who will bear the country's flag to France and that the response to the sale of tickets will be large. The patronesses for the battery are as follows:

Patronesses of Battery B.
Mrs. J. M. McIlwether, Mrs. Will Rohan, Mrs. A. S. Bond, Mrs. A. E. Fauve, Mrs. A. J. Detzer, Mrs. J. H. Gilpin, Mrs. Stephen Callahan, Mrs. Harry Hogan, Mrs. Arnold Tresselt, Mrs. Hal Rehner, Mrs. A. D. Zuber, Mrs. A. K. Remmel, Miss Florence Kemp, Miss Emma Henderson, Miss Alice Knight, Mrs. Charles E. Bond, Mrs. Austin Stults, Mrs. E. H. Kilbourne, Mrs. Rose Sutton, Mrs. Elsie Dreibeiss, Mrs. Dan Beers, Mrs. E. L. Lewis, Mrs. Levi A. Todd, Mrs. Fred McCulloch, Mrs. W. C. Cleary, Mrs. O. L. Bickel, Miss Louise Pixley, Miss Margaret Vesey, Miss Hulda Irmsher.

Expect Call Soon.
Officers state that the mobilization call has been expected every day this week. It is their opinion that they will be at Fort Benjamin Harrison by the middle of next week. They also express the idea that a recruiting party will be sent to Fort Wayne in order to recruit this organization to war strength. If the required number are not received in this manner the ranks will be filled up by draft.

An important drill of the battery will be held Thursday evening and all members are ordered to report at the court house promptly 8 o'clock.

Recruiting work was at a standstill from 3:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, giving the details an opportunity of attending the funeral and burial services of a comrade at Lindenwood.

Mobilize Aug. 5.

Adjutant General Smith has prepared a proclamation for issuance drafting the entire Indiana national guard into federal service as of Aug. 5, in compliance with the order of President Wilson mobilizing the national guard of all states for war service. The call in Indiana will bring to the colors approximately 8,500 men (the number now enlisted in the guard) and more may be mobilized by Aug. 5 because of enlistments between now and then.

The proclamation is formal and based entirely on the president's call. General Smith said it would bring into federal service all organizations of the Indiana guard, which have been recognized by the federal government, regardless of whether the new units have been inspected by federal inspectors.

YOUNG VANDERBILT A PRIVATE.

New York, July 19.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., 19 years old, son of Cornelius Vanderbilt, commanding officer of the Twenty-second engineers, has enlisted as a private in the field artillery section of the ammunition train, New York division. Young Vanderbilt is a grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt.

WILL GIVE PEDRO PARTY.

The central committee of the socialist party of Allen county will give a Pedro party and luncheon Thursday evening on the fourth floor of the Law building.

COMMITTEE FALTERS ON SALARY RAISE

Much Missionary Work Will Be Needed for Council Members.

The council committee may make a negative report on the petition to grant even a $1,800 salary for Carl Getz, city forester, and Charles J. Stels, secretary of the park commission. At that committee meeting Wednesday night it was admitted by two members of the council body that much missionary work will be necessary among the city fathers if any increase at all is allowed the park employees.

Members of the park board, who attended the Wednesday evening conference, stated that they believed Getz and Stels can be retained if paid $1,800 each, although Getz has said positively that only $2,000 will hold him as forester. Councilmen Hartman and Schlebecker, who attended the joint meeting, are mildly in favor of allowing a slight raise for the park men in the August budget.

"SPIRIT OF AMERICA."

Patriotic Number to Feature Elks Band Concert.

The patriotic patrol number, "Spirit of America," by Zamernick, will feature the band concert to be given in Lakeside park by the Elks band on Friday night. Other stirring numbers appear on the program, which has been carefully arranged by Director John L. Verweire. The program follows:

WILL EXPRESS SELVES.

Many Citizens Will Voice Street Paving Views.

A number of tax-paying citizens are expected to attend the board of works' meeting Thursday evening and to tell what kind of material they favor for paving the streets before their homes. Many citizens have expressed their sanction of the materials selected by the board of works members on Monday. Others do not want the coverings suggested by the board and will so state.

The materials which the board members have chosen for the Liberty, Osage and Wall streets and Guttenus concrete for Coombs, Grace, Garden, Kinnaird avenue, Lake avenue, Laselle, Wildwood avenue and Webster street.

Enjoys Release.

Deputy City Clerk Harry Swartz is enjoying a release Thursday afternoon. The endless chain of letters asking about draft numbers is broken. Only two of the query notes were received Thursday noon. The deputy has answered more than 300 letters in regard to the new conscription numerals.

To Sell New Drinks.

The new beverages of beer and herry will be sold in city parks along with pop and confections. Park board members ruled on Wednesday night that the sale of the non-intoxicants should be allowed.

Birth Record.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Klaren, 532 Laselle street, a boy. To Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kopp, rural route No. 6—a girl.

Building Permit.

A building permit was issued to J. A. Pfeiderer to build a frame residence at 2410 Maumee avenue, $3,000.

ACCIDENT CASE WILL TEST STATE STATUTE

George Shigley Charged With Failure to Report Crash.

An array of attorneys will battle over word meanings in a test of the state law when George Shigley, of Bluffton, is tried in city court on next Thursday on a charge of failing to report an accident. The state code states that a citizen must report a smash when he is responsible for the affair.

Who is the determining factor in the question about which the legal warfare will be waged.

The accident occurred a week ago Saturday night. No police report was entered at the time, it is claimed. Shigley was driving an automobile which apparently ran wild near the corner of Broadway and Taylor streets. In order to avoid a street car the man is said to have driven his automobile against a wagon and then up on the sidewalk.

A couple walking on the sidewalk were hit and injured. Miss Luella Beneke, 1207 Taylor street, sustained a sprained ankle and Ino Becker, 1109 Barr street, had his hip fractured.

Many witnesses will be called in the case, including occupants of the street car and people residing near the scene of the accident. A part of the witnesses state that Shigley was intoxicated. Attorneys for the defendant asked that the case be continued from Thursday morning in order that they might have more time to prepare a defense.

In high explosives the British production is now sixty-six times that of Germany in January, 1917.

TEN MARKED HIGHWAYS

Fort Wayne Will Fare Well in System of Trails in Indiana.

TO ESTABLISH O. I. M. HIGHWAY SOON

Martin H. Luecke Named President of Details Committee.

Before the summer is over Fort Wayne is to have ten marked highways or trails leading in and out of the city which start somewhere and go somewhere.

The entire state will be marked with a comprehensive system of automobile trails, according to the plan which was adopted at a meeting of the State Automobile association held in Indianapolis. Martin H. Luecke, of Fort Wayne, was named president of the committee on details.

In the near future a meeting will be held in Fort Wayne for the establishment of one of these trails. This trail will be known as the O. I. M. way leading from Cincinnati, O., to Kalamazoo, Mich., and passing through Fort Wayne. Other points which will be taken in on this trail will be Richmond, Winchester, Portland, Decatur, Auburn, Kendallville and Sturgis.

The president of the chamber of commerce of Kalamazoo and the president of the automobile association of Cincinnati have endorsed the movement and have promised to assist in the realization of this plan.

These trails, which are to be laid out over the entire state, are to connect routes already marked and to be marked in adjoining states and to pass through practically every county east in the state. The plan is to have a distinctive marking pointed on the telephone or telegraph poles along these trails. Three before arriving at each turn and three after leaving same with the letter "L" or "R" signifying left or right on the first pole. Four poles at each crossroad and an occasional pole between the crossroads are also to be marked with the same emblem. The selection of the roads to be marked will be left to the judgment of the superintendent of highways and the automobile clubs along the routes.

Each one of the separate roads or trails will be marked with a different emblem and each trail will have the same emblem established and marked. This will enable all travelers in automobiles to follow the routes with ease.

List of Trails.

The other trails which will pass through Fort Wayne or begin here are: The Lincoln highway, which will have already been established and marked. The Hoosier highway, which begins at Bryan, Ohio, and goes to Vincennes, Ind. It travels through the following cities: Fort Wayne, Bluffton, Hartford City, Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis and points south.

The Washburn way, which travels from Fort Wayne to Danville, Ill., and takes in the following cities: Huntington, Wabash, Logansport, Lafayette. This road follows the Washburn railroad and the Washburn river.

The Yellowstone trail begins at Portland, Oregon, and goes as far east as Puget Sound. The trail begins at Hammond and passes through Valparaiso, Plymouth, Columbus, City, Fort Wayne, Defiance, Fremont and east of Puget Sound.

The Fort Wayne and Battle Creek road begins in this city and goes to Battle Creek by the way of Auburn, Angola and Coldwater.

One of the most important factors in the O. I. M. way, which will be one of the first to be established, is that two branches of the Dixie highway will be connected. It will connect an eastern route at Cincinnati and a western route at Kalamazoo, which will give travelers a direct route from the Ohio city to the Michigan city.

A. E. Nielsen, representative of the Rand McNally Co., of Chicago, was in the city Wednesday consulting with Mr. Luecke in regard to the system of trails. He also gave valuable information as he assisted in the establishing of trails throughout the state of Illinois. The plan is to have the travel of Indiana and Illinois connect as well as all other adjoining states.

After the trails have been established and properly marked a complete map of these trails and their markings will be put on the market so that it will be the easiest thing in the world for automobile tourists to find their way from one city to the other.

Fort Wayne by virtue of its location will profit greatly by this system of trails. In addition to being the center of some of the best and most traveled trails of the state, it will also be in the route of some of the heaviest travel roads.

Not only will these trails bring thousands of tourists to the city every year, but they will be a great incentive in keeping the roads leading in and out of Fort Wayne in the best of condition.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN PARIS.

Paris, July 19.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., arrived from New York Tuesday and was greeted by the prefect of the department in behalf of the French government. American naval and medical missions and a number of American ambulance workers also arrived on the same steamer.

To equip a British sailor takes nearly eight times as many workmen as to equip a German sailor. The British sailor is now sixty-six times that of Germany in January, 1917.

FIREMAN ANSWERS TO CUPID'S CALL

Heiny Guth and Lena Schumaker Are Married at Jackson, Mich.

Heiny Guth, second lieutenant at the No. 1 fire station, has heard the call of the little love god above the clang of alarm bells. He went to Jackson, Mich., with Lena Schumaker, Wednesday, and the pair were united in marriage. They will return to Fort Wayne on Friday and make their home here.

City firemen were not expecting the event. There was nothing strange in the fact that Guth took his day off Wednesday. His comrades did wonder, however, when a substitute fireman reported for duty in place of Guth on Thursday. Inquiries bore out the suspicion that he was married.

Miss Schumaker has been engaged as housekeeper for Mrs. Mary Ewing, 423 West Main street, for some time. She is known as a most dependable woman. She will return to the Ewing home for a few weeks, until another housekeeper can be secured.

The couple are spending two days with relatives in Michigan. The husband will return to his place at the fire station Friday evening. There will be new zeal in his fire fighting.

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE OF OTTOMAN POWER

Detention of Turkish Students in New York Has Harsh Come-Back.

Berlin, Tuesday, July 19.—(Via London, July 19.)—Dr. Achmed Emin Bey, editor of the Constantinople Daily Sabah, one of a party of Turkish journalists who are at present guests of the German government, told the Associated Press today that the Turkish government withdrew the special train arranged for Americans who wished to depart from Turkey as a result of a report made by the former Turkish consul general at New York on his arrival at Constantinople that the American government had refused to permit Turkish students in New York to return with the officials.

"There is much feeling in Turkey as the result of the action of the United States," said he, "and reprisals are being urged in some quarters. When the break came our government offered to place at the disposal of American citizens a special train in which they might travel in comfort on their way to Switzerland. After we learned the attitude in America toward the Turkish students, the government withdrew the offer of travel accommodations."

"When the war began our government closed the English, French and Russian schools and seized their property. Robert college at Constantinople (an American institution), was not molested, however, and it still is open. There are about 400 Americans still in Turkey."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HOST READY TO HELP

Boston, July 19.—Enrollments for the Christian Endeavor army of universal patriotic service, have already reached many thousands under the plan suggested by the trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor at their recent meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., according to a letter addressed to the press by Dr. Francis E. Clarke, the society's president. Dr. Clarke said the army aimed at a membership of at least one million. The enlistment pledge binds each member, whether in or out of the ranks of the organized war forces of the United States, to some form of service as a Christian, loyal to God and country.

Dr. Clarke said the plans had received the approval of President Wilson. It also was approved by Herbert C. Hoover and other men throughout the country. He deprecated the fact that he had seen in many newspapers "a more or less sneering and supposedly humorous allusion" to a suggestion made at the Winona Lake meeting that cigarettes should be left out of the comfort bags sent by Endeavorers through the Red Cross to soldiers and sailors.

PERSHING NEEDED RED CROSS THINGS

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Hurried orders which resulted in thousands of comfort kits being rushed to Red Cross headquarters here by the chapters in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore some time ago were explained today by officers of the Red Cross war council who said the kits were requested by the war department for General Pershing's forces in France. In a message of thanks for the gifts General Pershing said: "These things cause the soldier to remember that the people at home are behind him. You do not know how much that means to any soldier who is over here carrying the flag for his country. This is the point which I want to make. The people at home are behind him."

The purpose here is merely to give the young men who are over here with the army in France some knowledge of French as well as some words and some part of friendly intercourse with French people and soldiers. The attempt is made to learn the meaning of the words.

VETERANS ENJOY ANNUAL PICNIC

Members of Lawton-Wayne post, G. A. R., and other civil war veterans, gathered Thursday at Swinney park for their annual picnic. The heroes of the civil war gathered at the park at an early hour Thursday morning for an entire day's outing. The day was spent in talking of the days when side by side they fought for the same cause and of the many thrilling incidents which surrounded the four years' campaign. Dinner and refreshments were served on the grounds. The number this year was much smaller than that of a year ago.

HAD $10,000, BUT LEAVES IT.

South Bend, Ind., July 19.—Joseph Smith, aged 53, committed suicide last night by blowing the top of his head off with a shot gun. He constantly brooded over the supposition that he was fated to die in the almshouse, although he had $10,000 on deposit in a Knox, Ind., bank.

Between May, 1915, and May, 1916, the British output of bombs was increased thirty-three fold.

Learn Some French Today

THIRTEENTH LESSON PREPARED BY MME. ARCHINARD

There are many aces among the aviators
Il y a beaucoup d'As parmi les aviateurs.
Elle a bohkoo dahs pamee lay aveh-ah-tuhr.

What do you call an ace?
Ou appelez-vous un As?

An aviator that has brought down five planes.
Un aviateur qui a abattu cinq avions
Un aveh-ah-tuhr kee a ab-ah-tuh san-k aveh-on!

The aviators are the eyes of the army.
Les aviateurs sont les yeux de l'armee
Lay aveh-ah-tuhr son-s lay zeh duh larmay.

In these lessons the English sentence appears in the first line, the French equivalent in the second and the pronunciation in the third line. In the pronunciation key, straight lines over the letters A and U denote the long sound, as in "hate" and "duke"; curved lines over these letters denote the short sound, as in "hat" and "but"; two dots over the U indicate a sound somewhat like the German "ue," which Americans may approach by pronouncing long U and long E at the same time.

Cut out these lessons and paste them in your note book.

PASSING OF SOUTHERN CONVICT CAMPS

Nature, in Running Out of Great Pine Forests for the Production of Turpentine, Seems to Be Aiding Legislation in Doing Away with the Old System.

BY MARC N. GOODNOW.

It was a typically beautiful midwinter Sunday in Central Florida. A tramp of several miles through the whispering pines of a turpentine forest had brought a party of tourists to a clump of rough, whitewashed, board buildings squatted in the white sand close to a railroad. From a distance the largest building had the appearance of a warehouse or a stable surrounded by a high board fence or stockade. It was a story and a half high, three as long as its width, with windows along the sides, heavily barred.

At diagonally opposite corners of the high stockade were rudely constructed platforms, each sheltered by as rude a roof of pine boards. Beneath each shelter sat a young man, lazily smoking a cigarette, with ominous, long-barreled pistols beside him.

Near the railroad stood another low, white building. Inside another enclosure was a small, one-story shack, from one end of which a cloud of smoke issued, proclaiming the kitchen. Farther back in the same enclosure was another shack, open on three sides, and a pig pen.

In the middle of the sandy yard stood a well, fed from surface water and the excess of the bayou more than a mile away. There were no trees, no grass, no shade of any kind, nothing but hot, white sand and a few stumps.

A lean, swarthy man of 35 years, wearing the ubiquitous black slouch hat, and known by the official title of "Captain," welcomed the rather curious visitors, and with some show of native pride even invited them to take a look about the camp—the camp being a prison, housing some forty negro convicts.

"Sunday mornin' the men spend in cleanin' up, takin' baths and changin' clothes," drawled the captain, as the big gate of the stockade swung open and a growing pile of soiled, striped flannel garments became conspicuous. There was the unique sight of a score of nude convicts, exchanging soiled garments for fresher ones. Their glistening bodies were burnished bronze in the strong sunlight, and their huge, knotted muscles played under the skin like great cables.

The interior of the bunkhouse and messroom was even more crude as a place in which to live than the exterior as a means of shelter. No attempt had been made to "finish" the building, as craftsmen would say; that is, to cell, or plaster, or remove the bare effect of rafters and boards. A barricade of heavy timbers set vertically from floor to roof formed a partition between messroom and sleeping quarters. Next to the only door of the building was a small cage of heavy timbers and furnished with a small heating stove and a chair for the guard who kept night vigil over the forty sleeping convicts.

Sans Knives, Sans Forks.

Two zinc-covered tables to the right of the entrance formed the dining board; boxes and broken chairs formed the seat. In a corner close by stood a sink and basin, where the dishes were washed. Only dishes, pans and spoons are used inside this stockade. There are no knives or forks (except for varden and guards). Fingers were made first; besides, knives and forks are much too ugly as weapons in a quarrel.

In the same room, at the corner farthest from the door, were two cracked porcelain-lined tubs set in an unscreened space, merely surrounded by torn wire netting. Several more broken chairs and boxes and a heating stove within a wooden pen completed the furniture and equipment of the messroom. On one wall hung an illumination of the ten commandments and several illustrated poems. On another wall hung the rules and regulations of the state prison authorities, almost too black from soot and grime to be deciphered. Except for these wall decorations, there was no evidence anywhere of any reading matter.

The bunkroom was a long, low compartment filled with iron beds supporting filthy mattresses. The floor was bare and reasonably clean, and the entire interior smelled strongly of a mixture of formaldehyde and other disinfectants.

"The beds are a bit old," was the explanation volunteered, "but we've made a requisition for new ones. We disinfect every other day and scrub the floor every morning. Sunday morning, of course, the men always take their time about things."

THIS TRUSTY HAS BEEN CHASED by the HOUNDS

In the messroom the prisoners were shuffling and laughing and telling jokes. In one corner a black figure was just emerging from his "tub"; in another, the rattle of tin and granite dishes told of preparations for dinner.

"Where's Charlie Jackson?" called the captain, and two barefooted men shuffled off to find Jackson. Presently the most genial smile one ever saw peered around the jamb of the door, and a slender young negro of 20 years shuffled into the room.

"Charlie," said the captain, "let's have a little harmonizin'."

"Yassuh, boss," he smiled, and forthwith assembled his troupe of vaudeville entertainers. Charlie disappeared for a moment and returned in his theatrical rigging of false whiskers, crooked cane, cornucop pipe, straw hat and a bend in his back which, with one arm akimbo, proclaimed him old "Uncle Eph" in the original skit, The Old Plantation. "Eph" had returned after forty years' absence to see his "old mammy and the chillun." "Mammy Liza" was enacted by a young buck with a bandana tied about his head and falling over his shoulders.

Camp Meeting Songs.

In the midst of this skit, in which "Uncle Eph" referred to his children generally as "big hunks o' midnight," and in which each was letter perfect, they all broke into the song, "Pickin' Cotton," which was the cue for "buck and wing" dancing. Each of the seven indulged in his own brand of dancing and executed steps one never saw before—in shoes and barefoot.

Some one pitched a quarter to the floor, and the antics of the dancer in picking up the coin threw the observers into spasms of laughter. Then followed a series of plantation and camp-meeting songs and hymns by another set of singers—curiously enough, the most vicious men in the camp. It was said.

"Almost every night it's just like this," said a guard. "They go over this stuff time and again. They gave a minstrel show last Christmas and made quite a lot of money from the visitors."

"Don't they do it largely to forget they are here?"

"All their singing and dancing wouldn't make them forget that," answered the guard, with a significant glance. "But after the first three or four months the tragedy wears off and they get to be like the fellows who have been here for years. It's the man who first comes to one of these camps that broods and gets sullen and is always thinking of getting away.

BASEBALL

That's the dangerous time, when he has to be watched, and about the only time when he tries to break camp. I could almost tell you how long every man has been in this stockade simply by the look on his face."

All the men were in their bare feet; feet, too, that were swelled and misshapen almost beyond recognition. They were spread out, broken down, cut, gouged, blistered and scratched; and the nails of many of their toes were gone. It is hard to imagine what comfort such feet will ever find in the shoes of civilized society when release from prison conditions finally comes.

"Nigger's dat fust comes heah," said Charlie's mate at the grindstone, "what ain't use' to bein' on dey feet, gits fagged easy an' hit mek dey feet swell up sumptin' awful, boss. Dat's why dey all goes barefoot in de stockade an' round' camp. Dey shoes ain't big enough foh dey feet. Mine doan swell no mo'."

The "Captain" had neglected to mention that while his visitors were being shown through the camp, a negro convict was being chased through the woods several miles away in the regular Sunday morning rehearsal. This was a weekly practice for the purpose of keeping the dogs' sense of smell keenly whetted to a point of instant usefulness in case of an attempted escape.

When the visitors emerged from the mess and bunk rooms into the stockade they were amused by the sight of a shining black figure devouring with profound relish a huge "silver" of possum, but had no idea that the fellow had worked and dodged his way for an hour ahead of the dogs in order to acquire it.

The work is so arranged that the squads arrive at a certain stage of their rounds on certain days of the week. The entire territory is covered between early Monday morning and Friday night or Saturday noon. But it is constant and heavy work. A soft pitch is gathered from the open face of the blazed tree from March to October. From October to March the gum must be scraped or pulled from the tree. The still, in which the gum and pitch are transformed into spirits of turpentine, is located near the camp, and is kept supplied by teamsters and their wagons. A barrel of soft pitch produces approximately ten gallons of spirits of turpentine. In a single charge of ten barrels of scrapings, or gum, there are about six barrels of resin and two year trees, and another "back-box" older trees that are sufficiently large to yield still more resin.

Work of the Convicts.

These convicts are worked in three or four squads, each in charge of one or two guards and several cur dogs. One squad may "box" virgin trees, another dip fresh pine pitch, another scrape third-year trees, another "pull" fourth-barrel of spirits. The stills run two charges a day ordinarily, and produce from 100 to 150 gallons of turpentine in one charge.

July and August, the rainy season in Florida, are the worst months of the year for ague, chills, fever, pneumonia and the like. Then it rains almost every day and the water flows for the country.

"Dat's de time when it gits you," said a convict in a whisper. "Mah Gawd, man, hit's sho' awful, standin' in watah an' runnin' all day long in the wet grass up to yo' waist. Why, man, ah's got a lump in mah chest right now as big as yo' fist. Every man in this heah camp has got sumpin' the matter of him."

In 1910, Gov. Clichter considered twenty deaths among 1781 prisoners a low rate, because "so many are diseased before entering the camps."

Reward for Industry.

All prisoners are worked on the task system, and if they finish their work on Friday evening or early Saturday morning, they have the balance of the week in which to rest. This system, inspectors say, has been the means of getting good work out of the men without punishment. But there are many camps where there is entirely too much punishment, where the wardens and guards are not at all suited to their positions.

When you cut or burn your finger and run to the medicine cabinet for a bottle of spirits of turpentine, you seldom stop to think of the way in which this medicine is gathered; how much more of pain it involves than the pain you seek to allay by its use, what bodily and mental travail, what cost in human life.

At the time of my visit to this Florida camp, 1800 or more convicts were leased by the state to one company—the Florida Pine Company—for the sum of $122.84 per convict annually, and in turn subleased to individual turpentine distillers operating the thirty-one convict camps of the state, for the sum of $400 a year apiece. Thus the Florida Pine Company was collecting the tidy little sum of about $76 per annum upon the labor of between 1400 and 1800 convicts—a total of perhaps $122,000 a year. This company paid to the state one year for the use of convicts $207,116.48. The arrangement was so satisfactory and profitable to both parties that the lease was renewed in 1909 for a period of four more years; and on January 1, 1914, a number of leases were renewed for two years.

All the convict got out of this sum was a whitewashed stockade, work the year round in all kinds of fever and weather, punishment with a leather strap for infraction of rules or lagging at work, no energy left for overtime work, even if he were paid for it, and no money for those who might be dependent upon him. And then, as if the system were incompatible with nature herself, the millions of pine trees began each year to lose their productiveness so it was no longer profitable to operate the camps, a number of which went out of existence when the four-year lease expired in 1914, and others followed, so that the state, both from necessity and policy, provided by statute for the care of its convicts on a state prison farm in Bradford County.

The bill provided that after January 1, 1914, all new prisoners should be placed on the state farm, except that able-bodied ones could be delivered to private lessees or to counties, to replace those whose sentences might have expired or who might have become hospital subjects. As time goes on, the solution, if it can be called that, of the state convict from the turpentine camp to the prison farm becomes a gradual and much-desired process.

Dayton Outfit Takes First Game of Series From Chiefs

All Home Clubs in the Central League Yesterday's Encounters.

When every home club in the Central circuit was losing its Wednesday game, it would have been dirty stuff for the Chiefs to spoil the coincidence and the Chiefs are a clean playing bunch. So they lost, 5 to 2. Jack Rowan was the opposing hurler and at times it looked like a shame to work him, but he got away and got away big. One bad inning for Doc Cummins put the wheat ball phenom to the bad.

In passing it might be well to state that Umpire Kuhns put in a most miserable day, not that there is any great kick coming on his decisions, but he was badly abused. No less than three times did he intercept the hottest variety of foul tips with his right foot. Another time he took an awful blow on the top of his head, which staggered him. Last, but not least, while negotiating the green between third and home, he took the prettiest brodie yet seen on the lot. His spill was graceful enough to warrant him a job in the highest class of slap stick and pie-throwing movie comedy, and the fans rudely told a large part of the story of yesterday's defeat. On one attempt they handed Jack Rowan a run in which that individual should have been caught flatfooted three different times. A wide throw to first gave him a life there and when he started plodding to second Williams had him caught three times over, but while he waited for Jack to approach within touching distance, he calmly allowed the pill to slip out of his paw and Jack was safe once more.

The Chiefs couldn't hit anything. Rowan held them to four hits. He had the best of them standing up and whiffing like school boys, and the hard-earned stickers on the club were not immune from going at the high ones and letting the groovers ride past.

Scoring started in the first inning when Tepe was given a chance at first through an error. He went to the key-stone on a neat sacrifice and did the rest of the circuit on Stewart's single. Esgrifried singled after Breaux had gone out in the first and took third when Rowan heaved to the grand stand trying to catch him napping. He remained at third while Smith went out, but after Hoffman had walked, the pair of them went through with a double steal which produced results.

The next score came in the fifth when Rowan was given a run on a piece of disorganization and punk playing. Smith tied the score in the sixth when he walked, stole second and completed the run on an out and a sacrifice.

Then came the big blow. Nee started with a single and took second on a sacrifice. Rowan singled and stole second. Tepe was passed leading the bases and hits. Kopping and Stewart produced the three runs. Stewart was forced at second and the inning closed when Breaux did a hundred yard dash in about three seconds and took a fly while speeding at something like sixty-three miles an hour. In the seventh the locals had a chance to tie the score but they flivvered and the stuff was off.

The eighth inning was a marvel of speed on both sides. In the first half Cummins pitched but three balls. The first was hit for a double, but the second man popped up to the pitcher for a double play and the third delivery was hit for a fly to Breaux. In the last half Rowan retired the Chiefs with six pitched balls.

After losing the first game and taking considerably riding from the stands the players will probably work a little harder and see what they can do towards cleaning up on their opponents during the stay at home. That would be a good idea and would help the popularity of the club more than talking back to the kidders who are doing their best to enjoy themselves.

In spite of the absence of specific allusion to glass in the sacred writings of the Hebrews, it is probable that the invention, which, perhaps, dates back to the time of Joseph, 3,500 years ago.

When the Band Began to Play! All Workers Quickstepped for Blocks Around! It Pays

When the band began to play! It was high noon. The typewriters of all the stenographers were silent, permitting the music to steal in the midday hush up walls, in windows, around corners, and down alleys.

All the workers of the district got back to work earlier than usual because the waitresses tangoed up and down with the dishes at double-quick and the elevator boys, keeping time, sped up.

Traffic was accelerated as the traffic cops turned the pedestal signs in unison with a quickstep march.

MAGNETS SOMETIMES SELL STARS, BUT NEVER THE BIG DRAWING CARDS

(By Paul Purman). If a wise fan would be made a couple of mental reservations and grin broadly when you hear a report of the sale of Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb, Grover Alexander or George Sisler.

The idea comes from a report that Washington was about to sell Johnson a few days ago.

Fact is, these four men are unbuyable. Even at the present monumental prices for good ball players practically all figures would be too small to remove one of these men from the club with which he is affiliated.

This is not alone on account of their wonderful playing, more perhaps on account of their drawing power.

When Detroit is playing anywhere around the circuit the fan goes primarily to see Cobb in action, secondarily to see the game. In Detroit Cobb's drawing power is inestimable. For that reason Cobb probably will never be put on the market even though he should slip badly.

for so long as he is able to put on a uniform and appear on the field he will be a drawing card.

The same holds with Johnson, Alexander and Sisler.

Washington is a poor drawing club. But receipts are boosted almost 100 per cent when Johnson is slated to pitch. It is not likely Johnson would be sold when he draws as much as the rest of the club combined.

There have been few men in baseball in this category. Matthewson was one. As long as Matty could toe the slab there was no chance of his being sold at any figure.

The status of the club makes a great deal of difference in cases of this kind.

For instance, Speaker was sold by the Boston Red Sox. While Speaker was undoubtedly the star of the club, there were several others not far behind him and the club could afford to take a chance on selling him for the price paid and depend on other stars to make the fans forget.

The breaking up of the Athletics was another example. Never a popular team, Mack found his attendance slipping to a point where he could better afford to dispense with his high salaried players and build up a new organization.

BENNY LEONARD WON'T JOIN UNLESS DRAFTED

Proves Himself a Four-Flusher and a Fake Ad-vertisement.

When will Benny Leonard enlist?

It has become a question of more than passing interest as Benny has twisted and squirmed ever since he made his original announcement of intentions, when he declared he would don the khaki immediately after he won the lightweight title.

Leonard has no intention of enlisting, never had in fact, and will not put on the olive drab unless he is caught by the draft.

Benny will not answer direct questions about enlistment. Billy Gibson, his manager and some others of his backers caused him to issue the statement after the Welsh bout, believing it to be "good policy." Whether or not it will prove a boomerang remains to be seen.

Leonard is a socialist, a pacifist and a conscientious objector.

When he went to Washington, ostensibly to consult naval authorities about enlistment, his real object, according to men close to Leonard, was to find whether political influence would save him from the draft.

Leaving out the consideration of "conscientious objecting" it's about time that something was done to prevent a bunch of prize-fighters making advertising capital out of patriotic statements which they have no idea of following up.

WAGNER DAY IS KEPT FOR BASEBALL VET

Boston, July 19.—The twentieth anniversary of the appearance of John H. (Honus) Wagner in the National league was observed at Braves field today when the game between the Pittsburgh and Boston clubs was made part of a "Wagner Day" celebration.

The veteran shortstop, who made his first major league effort as an outfielder with the Louisville club in a game with Washington on July 19, 1897, came here especially for the occasion.

He is recovering from a spike wound received recently and has been at his home in Pittsburgh.

GREAT BETTORS OF THE RUNNING TURF

GEORGE F. SMITH
(PITTSBURGH PHIL)

The Late
JOHN W. GATES

Last of Romantic Type Passes Away with Phil Dwyer — Fortunes Staked on a Single Race — Gates and the Memphis Poker Players.

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

THE recent death of Phil Dwyer, whose name was a household word among American boys and young men thirty years ago, brings to mind the passing of the glories of the sport of kings, the decaying day of the running turf, of the race horse, of the jockey and of the big gambler.

The names of the Dwyers, Mike and Phil, are woven in the woof of the once great, now dying, American running turf. They owned great race horses—Hindoo, unbeatable; Hanover, Kingston, Rhadamantus, Miss Woodford, George Kinney, Longstreet, Luke Blackburn, Benmont, Dewdrop, Pontiac, Passover, Ben Brush and Handspring. They employed great trainers—Jimmy Rowe, who now trains for H. P. Whitney; Frank McCabe and others. The great jockeys, Sims, Maher, Sloan, Tarral, Griffith and scores of others.

Mike Dwyer was one of the mightiest plungers the betting ring has ever known. The Dwyers owned many great race tracks around New York, and were the creators of many classic stakes. They were among the strongest props of the American running turf in the days of its glory about New York, Chicago, Louisville and St. Louis.

Phil Dwyer's death is coincident with the beginning of the end with the running turf in the United States. It still exists in Kentucky, Canada, and sporadically in New York and Maryland. Canada has been a haven for men who like to race horses, but Canada is talking about stopping the sport this summer. It is a drain on the purses of the people, now busy with the expenses of war.

Horse racing has been called the sport of kings, because, no doubt, none but kings could afford it. There are no kings in the United States, but there are many tradesmen richer than the kings of the eighteenth century. So horse racing took hold in the United States, first in Virginia, to which it was fetched by the cavaliers, who were nobles in England and loved good horses, then in Kentucky, sound bone in race horses, California and other states grew fine horses, but they never endured. They did not get the lime they needed to make their bones firm. So they developed ringbones, spavins, splints and other bone diseases early in their careers.

bettors, but they did not make racing a mere gambling tool, as was done outside of Virginia and Kentucky. Plungers would bet huge sums on their own horses, break themselves at times, but race meetings were only of a few days' duration and the spectators, in general, did not wager heavily. It was otherwise in New York, Chicago and San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans and other places where racing became popular. It was a sport among the Virginians and the Kentuckians. It was a gambling game everywhere else. It grew to such mighty proportions that it suborned politicians, controlled legislatures, and even assumed to nominate and to elect governors of states.

That was fifteen years ago. Had racing endured and grown as business and finance has grown, it would be larger than the United States now. In fact, it was a question of whether racing would rule some of the states or the states should rule racing. As a general thing you will notice that when any sport or business assumes to dictate to a great state that sport or business loses. Racing attempted to nominate and to elect governors in New York, Illinois and Missouri, California and Louisiana. The people got up and smote racing, just as they smote Standard Oil and the railroads, both of which were, by some, believed greater than the United States. Governors Folk in Missouri, Hughes in New York and Dinwiddie in Illinois dealt racing deadly blows.

Dwyers Honest Sportsmen.

The Dwyers were aces in the sport of kings, but they were biters when they started. They had grown wealthy dealing in meat about Brooklyn. They drove good horses when they owned but one butcher wagon. The got and drove trotters later on. Then they got into running horses and they owned some wonderful horses. They were honest men. No one can deny them that.

Mike Dwyer was a high roller of the first water, one of the biggest bettors the American turf ever saw. Phil, who died the other day, was not a big bettor. He played a safer and wiser game. He owned race tracks and good commercial properties. Phil Dwyer died a rich man. Mike died poor. That's the way most gamblers do die.

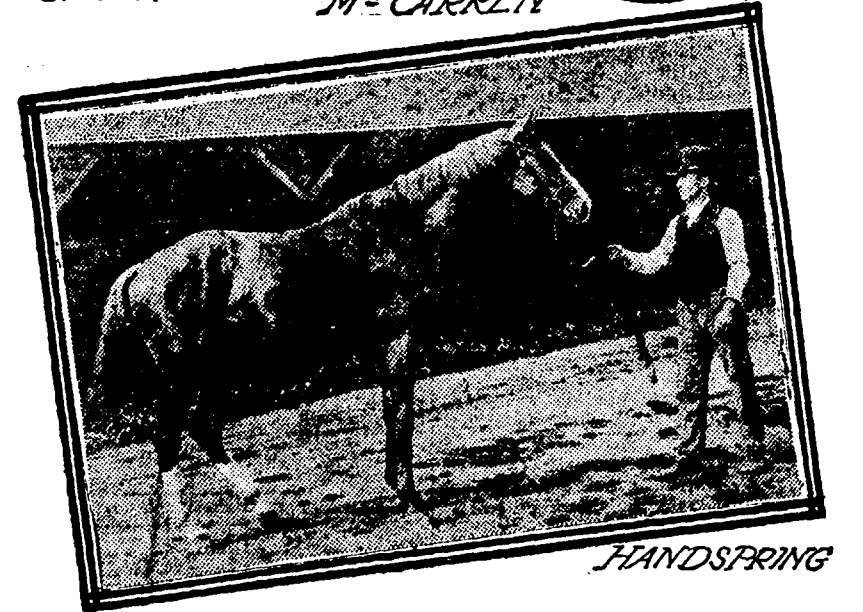

The Dwyers and their horses set the American youth on fire thirty years ago. Every boy in the land knew about Hindoo. Hanover was a great race horse. Miss Woodford was one of the greatest race mares that ever looked through a bridle. Kingston was a really great race horse. There has been few greater than her. He was only of pony size, but he had the speed of the wind, the heart of a lion. George Kinney and Longstreet were great. Tremont, not great for distance, was one of the fastest sprinters that ever passed under a wire. The "red with blue snail" of the Dwyers, California mare, was withdrawn by his owner, Sunflower, was in to take a work-out and second money. A cinch the bookmakers said. So they laid $1 against $10 that Kingston would lose. No bettors dare to take such short prices. You stand to lose big money if your horse is beaten and if he wins your winnings are negligible. Dwyer liked to bet on his own colors. He was proud of his reputation. He was a natural born gambler. So he sent "Circular Joe" Vendig into the ring to bet $100,000 against $10,000 that Kingston would win. The California mare beat the great gelding by a nose and Dwyer lost $100,000.

JAMES F. SLOAN

PATRICK HENRY

Backed His Judgment.

Dwyer never caved about the prices laid against his horses. If he thought they would win, he bet just the same. He died poor.

The Dwyer name fetches up recollections of other famous high rollers of the American turf. Of course, when you speak of the great turf gamblers everyone will cry "Pittsburgh Phil." It is true that George F. Smith, known as Pittsburgh Phil, was a big bettor. More than that, he died with $800,000 in cash in his credit in the bank.

Phil was a big bettor. Yet the late State Senator Patrick H. McCarren of the Borough of Brooklyn probably was the biggest bettor that the American turf ever has known. McCarren was political manager of the Standard Oil in the State of New York, and generally, in Eastern States of the Union. His income was estimated at $2,000,000 a year. McCarren died relatively poor. It has been calculated that he wagered $1,000,000 every year. How much of this he won, or how much he lost dependent sayeth not. This much is known: Many of the men who acted as betting agents for McCarren, the messengers who placed his money, became rich off the commissions they received from the bookmakers for bringing them the patronage and off the presents made them by McCarren when he won.

James A. Keene, the famous stock exchange speculator, owned many great race horses, but never wagered any fabulous sums on them. The Belmonts, father and son, also fancied the turf, but never became famous for their betting exploits. Harry Payne Whitney, probably the leading horse owner of today, always has had a stable of crackes, but never the reputation of being a bettor. In fact, Mike Dwyer and "Pittsburgh

Phil" were the only owners of horses who achieved fame as big bettors. Pittsburgh Phil did not become an owner in a large way. His horses, on the whole, were of moderate class, useful as betting tools, not famous as winners of great races. The Dwyers loved a horse for the sake of the horse. "Pittsburgh Phil" was a gambler pure and simple. McCarren did his betting in a quiet way. No great noise was made about any coups made by him. Very probably he did not engineer any great betting exploits. In volume of money wagered every day in the ring he exceeded all other men known to the betting sheds of the United States.

Gates the Plunger.

No doubt the most famous, for the time being, gamblers the American turf has known were John A. Drake and the late John W. Gates. Gates, who was the commissioner of the partnership, always made a noise when he won. The famous Royal Flush coup in England netted Drake and Gates $250,000. That is not an immense sum to win on one race. Many British, Hungarian and Russian noblemen have won and lost much more than $250,000 on a single race. "Tattersall's," the London establishment where responsible bettors meet to settle every Monday, has frequently seen more than $250,000 paid over by or to an individual bettor on a single race. Some of the South African diamond field millionaires have lost and won more than $250,000 on a single race. Then it must be understood that Drake and Gates bet only $25,000 to win $250,000 on Royal Flush. It will be seen that the wager was not in any wise extraordinarily large. The Esterhazy, Hungarian noblemen, who raced horses in England, have been known to wager as much as $300,000 on the result of a race. Many of the great Russian and Polish nobles, the Radziwills, for instance, have been high rollers. The famous sporting marquis of Waterford, a turf figure of the 1840s, bet as much as $50,000 on one race. That is twice as much as Drake and Gates bet when they made their world-rounding coup on Royal Flush, an evil-spirited horse, who was bought for a song from his English owners, and when trained by Enoch Wishard, the Yankee, proved tractable and ran a remarkable race.

There is no doubt, however, that Gates was a fearful gambler. It is told to bet that when commissioned by Drake to bet on a certain horse in New York, Gates wagered $100,000 in a few days. When he told Drake what he had done, Drake suggested that Gates had bet too much money on very average sort of a horse, who had a very average sort of a chance. "Anything the matter with the horse, John?" asked Gates.

"No," said Drake, "but $100,000 is a lot of money to bet on anything."

"All right," replied Gates, relieved, "I was afraid something was the matter with the horse." Gates, a natural-born gambler, never thought of such a thing as overbetting. To his mind the bottom of your pocket or the end of your bank account or the limit of your credit was the only reason for ceasing to gamble.

$35,000 in Coin Toss.

Gates never knew when to stop betting. If he was not one of the big bettors of the American turf, he was one of the great gamblers of his era. It is related when Gates visited Memphis the members of the famous Chickasha Club, who had heard of his poker playing, got up a game for his entertainment. A syndicate subscribed $35,000, and three members of the club were chosen to play the Club has recently been dissolved. At the time of Gates' visit, 1889, it had among its members some of the very finest poker players in the world. They had played cards up and down the Mississippi in the golden days, and did not feel that their superiors ever sat behind a bob-tailed bush.

"I am sorry, gentlemen," said Gates, when invited to play, "but it must be a short game. I must leave Memphis at 10 tonight."

"But, Mr. Gates," explained one of his hosts, "we can make it worth your while to stay longer. We have $35,000 to lose. 'Can't possibly stay any longer, gentlemen,'" said Gates, "but I tell you what we'll do. We'll flip a coin for the $35,000." The Memphis men were artists, not gamblers. They wanted some entertainment for their time, and, anyhow, they were confident that their skill as poker players would not be overcome by Gates. They could not see the wisdom of taking a chance for their money. Poker looked like a sure thing to them.

Walton, the "Jubilee Juggins," a famous plunger of the British and American turfs, thought very little about wagering $35,000 on a race. Walton in his herited his wealth from South African sources and bet it with royal hand. He did not live very long. Plungers never do live long. They may repress their nerves and stand cool as ice while horses are racing for their thousands. Just the same, they die young. Strain gets them. The life is easy enough, open air, short hours, healthy hours, but still as they may seem, they burn up inside when their money is being shot away by some boy, young, inexperienced, perhaps weakened by reducing to make the low weights required of a jockey.

$300,000 for a Horse.

C. E. Sevier, the Australian millionaire, who once owned the great English mare, Scouter, was a tremendous bettor. Sevier paid something like $300,000 for Scouter, when she was a 3-year-old. She won all the great races open to her sex and many open to horses of both sexes. Sevier was a terrific bettor. "He said that he frequently wagered $50,000 on a race, and that he once wagered $100,000 on Scouter. The stewards of the English Jockey Club, the most exclusive organization in the world, did not like Sevier's free and easy colonial methods any more than they liked the whimsical ways of the Americans. Gates and Drake or the Yankee shrewdness of Enoch Wishard. He took the hint, sold his racing stable and retired from the turf.

McCarren, Gates, Drake, Mike Dwyer and "Pittsburgh Phil" were the great bettors of the American turf. Gates and Drake were Westerners from Illinois and Missouri, but their major operations were confined to tracks around New York. They raced and bet, later, around Chicago. "Pittsburgh Phil" was, as his name indicates, from Pittsburgh, and was not known to Western tracks. Dwyer raced horses all over the country and his money was on them wherever they started.

The big bettors of the Middle West have not been numerous, unless you wish to enumerate Drake and Gates among them. Ed Corrigan, who was the major racing man on the Mississippi Valley, was a track owner and horse owner and would bet on his own animals, but not vast sums. Corrigan was, in some respects, a commercial racing man, played the game "inside," was not above having a program made up to suit his own stable on his own tracks, so that he would win a majority of his own purses with his own horses, but he was, at bottom, a horseman who loved to race horses. He would bet, too, but not in exceeding sums. Corrigan was quite as much a lover of horses as Mike Dwyer, but not quite so great a gambler. But Corrigan was enough of a sport to race horses for fun, or bet horses against horses just for sport. He owned a great stable of horses about 1891, and had some $1,000,000 invested in breeding farms, race tracks, etc.

The reform wave wiped out Corrigan's fortune. He is still racing horses in a small way in Kentucky and on the Canadian tracks. He went up and he went down with his ship. He loved a fine race horse and was, after all, a man.

Racing in California was part of the Southern Pacific system. Tom Williams was the chief legislative agent of the great railroad, was the sole owner of the race tracks about San Francisco. Williams took racing into the Legislature under the shield of the railroad interests and protected it for many years. Williams was not a big gambler. Nor did the Golden State turn out any great bettors to its race tracks.

Chinaman a Big Bettor.

The biggest bettor that ever came from California was a Chinaman, the famous, or infamous, "Little Pete." This smiling Coleridge almost drove the bookmakers crazy when he won some $100,000 in a few weeks. Everything "Little Pete" bet seemed to win. Eventually it was ascertained that the Chinaman had all the leading jockeys in his employ. His agents "arranged" the races, but his money, and the jockeys carried out orders to the letter. They saw that the races were run as "Little Pete" ordered that they should be run. Half a dozen leading jockeys were ruled off and "Little Pete" did not break any more bookmakers. He was killed some years after in a tong war in Chinatown, San Francisco.

It has been said that Chinese gamblers are always scrupulously honest until seduced into dishonesty by some white man. The inference is that the white brother put "Little Pete" on the wrong track.

"Pete" was a sport, though. He died fast. Some time forbade him to enter a certain district. Disobedience meant death. Pete was game. He went into a barber shop in the forbidden district. Some highbinder took his head clean off with one slash of a bolo.

MASTER KEY TO MANY FATES IN ARMY DRAWINGS

board for examination and subsequent exemption, discharge or acceptance for military service.

Since the average exemption district registration is 3,000 and there are 4,557 districts, the average number of men listed with each operation of the drawing machinery will be about $10,000.

Will Call 200 Per Cent.

Gen. Crowder announces also that local boards will be instructed to call 200 per cent. of their quota at the first call to provide for probable exemptions. That means that 1,374,000 men will be notified to appear for examination within the next few days. If more are necessary they will be called for as needed by the local boards in the order provided for in the drawing.

In some districts the 100 per cent. allowance for exemption may be too large and in others too small, but the local boards will be instructed in every case to continue calling for men until the district quota is filled. The state governor is now allotting to his district their respective portions of the states quota.

In each of the 4,557 exemption districts, among which the ten million registration cards have been divided, the cards have been given special numbers.

Master Key to Numbers.

The number of registrants in each district varies from about 135 in the smallest to more than 10,000 in the largest, so that the serial numbers to be dealt with in the drawing range from one to between nine and ten thousand. In order to reduce the mechanical process and make it possible for the 1,000 numbers drawn to reach every man in every district a so-called "master key" has been devised. This will be obtained by drawing slips numbered from naught to ten, which will be listed in the order they are drawn to form the key. Then will begin the drawing of the numbers 1 to 1,000. For the district with not more than one thousand registrants there will be no problem to determine the order of appearance before the exemption board. The number drawn first will fix the men whose card bears that serial number as the first to appear before the board. In the district with only 185 registrants, the 185 will be liable for appearance in the order in which their numbers are drawn, and when a number higher than that appears the district, of course, will not be affected. Application of the master key makes it possible to apply fairly each of the one thousand numbers drawn to districts with more than one thousand registrants.

The System Explained.

As a number is drawn it will be added to each of the thousands in excess of one thousand in each district. For instance, if 25 is the first number drawn of 25 as the first, 2,025, 3,025, 4,025, 5,025, 6,025, 7,025 and 8,025. By applying the master key the order in which numbers will be listed in each district will be determined. If the drawing of ten numbers for the key should result this way:

9, 7, 1, 5, 2, 3, 0, 8, 4, 6.

Then the drawing of 25 as the first number of the thousand would fix the first men to appear before the exemption boards in this order: 9,025, 7,025, 1,025, 5,025, 2,025, 3,025, 25, 7,025, 4,025 and 6,025.

The district with more than 3,000 registrants thus will have ten of its men assigned to their places at the head of its list, with 9,025 on top. The district with less than one thousand men will have one, number 25, at the head of its list. This process will be continued until every man of the ten million has been assigned his place on the roster of his district.

The Order of Examination.

In his explanation of the process and of the reason for fixing the order of liability for all of the men when only 687,000 are needed, Gen. Crowder says:

"If we were dealing with the ancient draft we should take every fourteenth man. But we are not conscripting. We are selecting for military those whose civil service can best be spared. Therefore the question is not who shall go first, but who shall be first called up for examination?" and who must do it is to make a list showing the order of examination.

"Now no one knows how many men must be examined to yield 687,000 soldiers. Therefore no one can say just how many men are absolutely necessary to put on this list.

"A moment's reflection will prove that the whole 10,000,000 must be given their places in the list of 'order of examination.'

"Every registered man is in a state of uncertainty. He does not know when he will be called. He hesitates to plant a crop for fear he will not reap it. Employers hesitate to engage his services fearing they will be temporary. This condition ought to be cured for the repose of the public mind. It can be cured to some extent by putting the names in a single list. For this reason the whole 10,000,000 names are to be given places on the list of order of examination.

"Obviously no single agency could examine 10,000,000 men; therefore the 10,000,000 are segregated into groups of suitable size for convenient examination. There are 4,557 of these groups. For each group a board has been appointed to examine for selection. By far the greater number of these groups consist of approximately 3,000 men.

"Since this is so our problem is not to put the whole 10,000,000 names in one list arranged in the order of examination. It is to determine the order of examination in each group.

The Necessity for Drawing.

"Since all registered men and in an equality of right and duty, the question of priority can only be determined by lot or drawing. It would be possible to have 4,557 separate drawings—one for each group—but since methods would vary and since supervision and absolute insurance against the charge of fraudulent manipulation could not be had in that way every consideration of expediency and justice urges one drawing in Washington.

The Method for the Drawing.

"In each group every registration card has a red inked number written on its face and these numbers are in a single series from unity (1) to the number corresponding to the greatest number of cards in the group. Normally this is from unity (1) to about 3,000.

"Exact copies of the cards in each group have been printed and sent to the various state capitals. Lists showing the name of each man in each group and the serial number of his card have been posted in the office of the board, published in the press and one copy is on file in Washington. There is, therefore, no chance of any man's number being changed without detection or of any card being lost beyond replacement.

The Idea of the Central Drawing. "Suppose there were just 3,000 names and numbers in every group. It is at once apparent that it would be very simple thing to have a central drawing that would control the order of every name and number in every group of the whole 10,000,000—just put 3,000 numbers into a bowl and draw them out one at a time. The 4,557 cards bearing that particular number at the head of every list in the United States. The second number drawn would put the cards bearing that number second on all the list, and so forth.

"Now the thing cannot be done in precisely this way because there are not precisely 3,000 numbers in every group. But the same idea with a few necessary modifications is the idea on which the present drawing is based.

The Drawing By Thousands. "To draw 10,000 separate numbers would take ten hours and would multiply the number of slips to be drawn if the '9-thousands,' the '8-thousands,' the '7-thousands,' and the '6-thousands,' were scattered all over the master list indiscriminately the cancellation by boards having small groups would be very tedious and would open the way to numerous errors. All this is easily avoided.

"Suppose we draw only 1,000 numbers. We could then provide that the drawing of the number 878 would also draw the numbers 1878, 2878, 3878, 4878, 5878, 6878, 7878, 8878 and 9878. In that way only 1,000 numbers need be drawn and by making our master list consist of one sheet for each 1,000 we could provide a master list easily applicable to lists with only 3,000 numbers, since such boards could disregard all except the first three sheets.

"We should do this but for the fact that this makes it certain that men in the first thousand would be called first, men in the second thousand next and men with high serial numbers last of all.

"Since the assignment of numbers is also done by chance, this does not interfere very greatly with the even chance of all men, but it does interfere to some extent. For this reason it was decided to have one drawing to determine the order within any one of the 1,000 and another drawing to determine the order of the sheets of 1,000 each should appear on the master list. Instead of arbitrarily assigning the sheets of 1,000 in their natural order. This reduces the whole matter to an absolute equality of chance.

The Details of the Drawing.

"One group of numbers from 1 to 1,000, and a second group from naught to nine have been carefully imprinted on opaque slips of paper, black on one side, counted and checked. These slips are being rolled up and each put inside a gelatin capsule with the black side out. To insure absolute accuracy of count, the capsules containing numbers from 1 to 1,000 have been counted into ten glass jars in groups of 100 each; the glass jars have been sealed and kept in a safe waiting the day of drawing.

"The contents of the jars will be de-canted into a large glass receptacle from which the capsules can be readily drawn.

"A blindfolded man will then draw capsules out one at a time. As each capsule is drawn it will be handed to an announcer, who will break the capsule and announce the number. While he is announcing the number a second capsule will be drawn and handed to a second announcer, who will break the capsule and read the number. The drawing will proceed in this way until all the capsules are drawn.

"Three tally sheets will be kept. One keeper of a tally sheet will repeat each number as it is announced and all three will write it down. In case of disagreement between tally sheets on any number, the sheets that agree will control.

Immediately before the drawing of the numbers from 1 to 1,000 the drawing of the numbers from 0 to 9 will take place to determine the order in which the thousands shall appear on the master lists."

RESOLUTION FOR PEACE GOES INTO THE REICHSTAG

Amsterdam, July 19.—The Berlin Tageblatt says the committee of the majority parties in the German reichstag have unanimously decided to move the peace resolution. Previously the committee had divided, two members of the center and one liberal disagreeing with the majority. The Tageblatt says that in the reichstag 221 deputies will vote for the peace resolution.

tion of the city, Fort Wayne was stirred by a similar tragedy.

The double death at that time ended the lives of a husband and wife. The man found his wife an inmate in the disorderly house. She attempted to flee from his wrath. He shot her and then killed himself, in almost the same fashion as the deadly affair of Thursday morning.

The house was formerly kept by Hattie Hyke, in the time when the now blackened light shades were bright with color and the darkening rooms were deadly in their alluring glow. Cooper fell, bullet pierced, beneath a large painting of Bacchus and the revel of woodland nymphs, which picture was once an attractive feature of the "red light" center.

Presumption is that the trouble Thursday morning started an hour before the double tragedy occurred. A negro lad came running down Calhoun street and told a city policeman that he should hurry down to the "Flats," because there was going to be some "shootin'" done. Officer Crosby started towards the former red light district, but arrived only at the corner of the street.

Coroner J. E. McArdle, upon investigation, found that Cooper had shot the woman three times and used the fourth to end his life. Cooper used a .32 caliber revolver containing five bullets. Four chambers contained empty shells while the fifth remained untouched.

The coroner expressed his belief that the man shot the woman in the head first and that after she had fallen he shot her two more times in the chest and entered her heart just above the left ear, while the other two undoubtedly lodged in the woman's heart.

Cooper walked a few steps away and turned the gun on himself. The bullet entered his head just above the right eye and came out at the back of his head. The wound was indicated that it went through his brain, causing instantaneous death.

Divorce Suit Pending. On April 2, 1917, George Cooper, the murderer and suicide, filed a suit for divorce against his wife, Aurelia Cooper. The case was heard in the superior court and would have been tried in the near future.

RECORD LOAD OF CORN WEIGHED ON THURSDAY

Wheat Prices Advance Ten Cents and Flour Goes Up Forty Cents.

Although corn is far from plentiful around these parts, a record in corn trading was established on the street Thursday morning. The largest load ever weighed on the city scales was brought by Louis Cuthall, of El River township, and sold to W. D. Henderson & Co. for $162.50. The net weight of the corn was 5,945 pounds, this representing 87 bushels at 29 pounds per bushel. The price was $1.75 a bushel.

Hay went up on the street again Thursday morning, $15.00 to $17.00 per ton being paid. Five loads were sold at these prices, which were from $1 to $2 higher per ton than those of Wednesday. Five loads of corn were sold at 75c to 77c per bushel.

Two local millers raised their quotations on wheat today, 10c being added to their former offers. This brings the range of wheat prices from $2.02 to $2.10 per bushel. The millers who offer more for the grain also raised their flour prices 40c per barrel.

MANY EAGER TO HELP IN RED CROSS WORK

Thirty-Six Employees at Elec- tric Works Form New Club.

Interest in Red Cross work in the city is steadily growing and a marked spirit of co-operation has been noted during the past few days. Not only are new organizations coming in nearly every day but new organizations are being formed to aid in the great movement for humanity.

At the General Electric works the employees of building No. 17, third floor, have organized what will be known as the General Electric Red Cross club. Thirty-six members have already been enrolled and many more are in prospect. A committee from the new club, composed of B. Kline, W. G. Blomberg and Glenn Culp called at the headquarters on East Berry street Wednesday afternoon and informed officials that the new organization, and turned over $18, the first fund to be secured by voluntary subscriptions which will be made every week.

Another donation which made up in spirit what it may have lacked in size was that given by James Fairplay, a janitor at the Hope hospital, who sent $2 to the headquarters, saying that he wished to do his bit in the great movement. Another donation of $14 was turned in by J. W. Gordinian as the proceeds of a musical entertainment given recently in the Moose hall by church workers on the south side. It was also announced that the proceeds of the S. W. Strick circle lawn social given on the lawn of Chalfant & Egley's a few weeks ago, was $33.00.

The Decatur auxiliary of the Fort Wayne chapter sent in ten new members Thursday morning. Officials at headquarters wish to emphasize that the public in general is invited to visit headquarters and see the work that is going on there, regardless of whether they wish to work or not. There is always room at headquarters for more workers, and no one should wait for a special invitation before offering their services.

Another evidence of the spirit of co-operation and desire to help was shown Wednesday when the Misses Perry, sisters employed at the Foster shirtwaist factory, offered to work button holes in all of the garments being cut at the headquarters.

Applications are coming in for the first aid work and some new classes will be formed in this branch soon.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

FRED C. EGGERS RESIGNS AS AGENT

Well Known Passenger Man Quits the Wabash to Go to Bowser Works.

Fred C. Eggers, local passenger agent for the Wabash, has tendered his resignation effective August 1. Mr. Eggers has accepted a position in the accounting department of S. F. Bowser & Company and will assume the duties there immediately after being released by the Wabash company. Thus will pass out of railway circles one of the most courteous and efficient local passenger agents of the city. His retirement will be regretted not only by the men with whom he has been associated in railway work, but by the patrons of the Wabash with whom he came in touch in a business way. Mr. Eggers got into railway work accidentally. When he came to Fort Wayne a little over six years ago to visit relatives and friends he had no thought of entering railway work. He was then a school teacher in southern Missouri, having a few years previously graduated from the Missouri State Normal academy at Cape Girardeau. The office of night baggage-master at the Wabash depot was vacant at that time and Mr. Eggers was induced to accept it and work during the school vacation months. Before they expired, however, he was induced to take the position of night ticket agent, which he held two years. Four years ago he was appointed local passenger agent to succeed Ed Haas, and he has held the office since, doing good work and making a friend of everyone with whom he did business. When asked why he was making the change, Mr. Eggers said: "Because the position with the Bowser people pays better than the office I am retiring from. I have no grievance against the Wabash; I received courteous treatment from all the officials and would remain only, as I said, the salary is much more at the Bowser's." Mr. Eggers has not been advised who would succeed him.

TAKES POSITION AT AKRON.

Ferman Harding Goes to the Firestone Rubber Company.

Ferman Harding, an electrician at the General Electric works, is considering a proposition to take a position with the Firestone Rubber company, Akron, O., with probabilities of accepting. He is off duty from the shop today, looking into the proposition. Mr. Harding has been at the General Electric works for a number of years, with the exception of the few months he was with the Goodyear Rubber company at Akron. That company has made several efforts to get him to return to their factory, but it seems the Firestone people are making the thing offer. Mr. Harding is a tester in the testing department of the General Electric works and is considered a most efficient and capable man.

G. E. GIRLS AT TRI-LAKE.

A party of girls from the small motor department of the General Electric works motored to Tri-Lake Sunday and had a most enjoyable time. The day was devoted to boating, bathing, fishing and various games in the grove and proved a most happy event. The party were the Misses Minnie and Lucella Troels, Miss Helen Runyan, Miss Ida Dixon, Miss Irma Schultz, Miss Emma Reiling, Miss Goldie Blake, Miss Lorretta Meyer, Miss Marie Moulton, Miss Viola Vachon, Misses Ruth, Gladys and Florence Dixon, Miss Beale Craig, Miss Carrie Cruise, Misses Flow and Clara Gilmore, Rose Eisenbacher, Miss Edna Rohrbach, Mrs. Hollenstein, Miss Amanda Hayes, Miss Beatrice Craig, Miss Edna Dixon and Messrs. Paul Meyers and E. Hollenstein.

EXPRESSMEN INJURED.

Harry Sanford, the night agent for the Wells-Fargo Express company, and C. Sheets, one of the expressmen at the Wabash depot, sustained painful injuries last night while in the act of loading a big machine. Mr. Sanford had the fingers of one of his hands painfully crushed and Mr. Sheets had some toes crushed by the heavy piece dropping on them when it slipped a few inches. The injuries of each are severe and will lay them up for two or three weeks.

INSPECTING SUB-DIVISION D.

Supt. Otto Schroll and his staff are out inspecting the tracks and stations on sub-division D, between this city and Clark Junction, and two days will be devoted to the work. Among the staff officers with Mr. Schroll are Trainmaster C. L. Hamilton, Division Engineer Guy Scott, Division Operator H. B. Reynolds, Master Mechanic E. E. Griest, Chief Dispatcher Harry Hart and W. A. Potthoff, the latter Mr. Schroll's stenographer.

HERE TO VISIT FATHER.

Orien Christen, with the Mitchell Motor company, of Racine, Wis., is here to spend a week with his father, C. E. Christen, of the east car shops, and other relatives. Mr. Christen is a pressman and until several months ago was employed in that capacity on a Fort Wayne newspaper. He resigned to go into the army and was in a training camp for some time, failing to pass the physical examination. Then he took employment at Racine.

TAKING TRIP TO WISCONSIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Krubs, the former a crater at the General Electric works, have started upon a trip to Wisconsin, where they will stop in several cities to see relatives. They will first go to Hartford, Wis., to visit their son, Matthew Krubs, a mechanic employed in auto works, who learned his trade in the Wabash shops in this city. Thence they will go to Racine, and later to Kenosha, visiting his sister at the latter place.

CHAUFFEUR INJURED.

Rudolph Trautman, chauffeur on one of the big auto trucks of the General Electric company, was knocked from his seat and injured at 5 o'clock last evening, at the corner of West Creighton avenue and Hoagland avenue, when the machine he was driving was struck by an automobile. His injuries are not serious, but will keep him from work several days. The truck and the automobile were both damaged.

G. E. MEN FROM EAST ARE HERE.

Several gentlemen connected with the sales department of the General Electric company are here today conferring with Messrs. A. A. Serva and T. W. Behan, of the sales department of the local plant. Among the visitors are J. C. Moffat, of New York, J. A. Haraden, L. T. Robinson and F. P. Vaughan, of Schenectady, and F. P. Cox, of Lynn, Mass.

INSTRUCTING HOSTLERS.

Louis Deck, airbrake machinist at the Pennsylvania shops, went to Lima, O., this morning and will remain there a few days instructing the hostlers and others in the Pennsylvania roundhouse how to handle engines. The company is now handling a good many more engines at that roundhouse than formerly.

CHANGE IN PAY METHODS.

Beginning last night, the men employed in the night gangs at the Pennsylvania shops are receiving their wages between the hours of 7 and 8:35 in the evening. Formerly they had to come back to the shops in the morning to get their earnings. The new method is more acceptable.

CALLED TO SISTER'S BEDSIDE.

William Greiser, of the dynamo assembling department of the General Electric works, has gone to Detroit to see his sister. A message from that city yesterday stated that she was seriously ill.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

John Reidel, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, is sick and off duty. A. Weibbe, of the Pennsylvania boiler shop, is off duty on account of the illness of his wife.

T. P. Mueller, a Pennsylvania blacksmith, is taking a lay off to attend to some private business.

F. T. Huron, assistant engineer of motive power of the Pennsylvania, has returned from a business trip to Pittsburgh.

Wabash Trainmaster C. E. Wells, of Peru, was in the city this morning, looking after business for the company.

A. B. Criswell, material inspector for the Baltimore & Ohio company, is here, inspecting 300 car wheels at the Bass foundry.

John Weidner, a stenographer, has been transferred from the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop office to the machine shop office.

A new employee at the General Electric works is Paul E. Clear, who was formerly employed as a tank repairman at the Pennsylvania shops.

L. D. Haslup, of the Pennsylvania boiler shop, sprained his ankle Saturday and has not been able to work since.

A. L. Hadley, head of the engineering department of the General Electric works, left last night for Schenectady, N. Y., on business for the company.

Fred G. Duryee, chief of the wiring department of the General Electric works, has gone to Lake James, where he has a cottage, to spend the week with his folks.

Ellis Frazier, Clarence Biltz, H. E. Lotz, E. A. Meisner and L. W. Young are new employees in the operating department of the General Electric works.

Henry J. Peters, foreman of the tool supply department of the General Electric works, is taking a part of his vacation this week. He will be out three or four days.

W. H. King, stenographer in the valuation department of the Pennsylvania, who had been making visits in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, resumed work this morning.

Cornelius Sweeney, machinist, resumed his duties in the airbrake department of the Pennsylvania shops this morning, after spending a few days at Clear Lake.

The Apparatus and the Small Motor Department teams of the G. E. Sunset league, are playing at Foster park, and the Warehouse and the Apprentice teams are playing at Lawton park this afternoon.

J. W. Wall, a member of Foreman Michael Krock's gang, in the shop yards of the Pennsylvania, will be off duty several days as the result of an accident yesterday. He had his hand and wrist hurt.

J. Frank Kolker and A. B. Hall, who have been engaged in front-end locomotive tests on the Erie and Ash-tabula division of the Pennsylvania, are here for a week-end stay and will go east again Sunday night.

E. A. Brinsley, motive power inspector for the Pennsylvania, returned from Pittsburgh this morning, after being there several days on business. He went to Chicago this afternoon and from that city will go east tonight.

J. J. Bryle and A. J. Bobay resumed work at the Pennsylvania paint shop this morning. They had been on leave on account of the death and funeral of their uncle, an aged farmer residing near Academie.

W. F. Rathenberg, a boilermaker's helper, and H. Garrett, a fitter, were at the Pennsylvania shops, have resigned. Rathenberg goes to the Beinhoff brewery to work and Garrett returns to his old home in Ohio because of the serious illness of his mother.

D. B. Schwarz, of the Pennsylvania car machine shop, is laying off today to decide the most patriotic question. The result will probably be that he will enlist in the army. He has not decided what department to go into and is investigating the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Haefling, of Lexington, Ky., are guests of William Donnell, the elevator man in the laboratory building at the General Electric works. Mr. Haefling formerly resided here and was employed in the General Electric works.

The General Electric works disposed of 700 tickets to the chautauqua to its employees. Harry Baals has the honor of selling the largest number of tickets, he disposing of 192. Garhan and O'Brien were a tie for the second place, each selling 100 tickets.

A. B. Sheekler, of the tin and pipe shop of the Pennsylvania, will begin a two weeks vacation Sunday, when he will go to his home, Bucyrus. He will make several trips from that city to Put-in-Bay and other points on Lake Erie.

Nearly every railroad in this part of the country has women on the payrolls, but so far as learned only one has employed women as ticket agent in an important position. Miss Clara Rodabaugh has been appointed assistant passenger agent of the Big Four at Columbus, O.

In the Pennsylvania tool room are five young men who are liable to draft under the conscription law. Their numbers have been "chalked" on the wall, under a clock, and crossbones, so that the result if any of the party are "hit" in the drawing can be readily seen by their shop comrades.

One of the large new engines of the Wabash rode a portion of the Peru roundhouse down yesterday when the hostler attempted to back it into the building. The door was too small and when the wall was caved in, one of the falling bricks struck Fred Gripke, a machinist, and fractured his shoulder blade.

James Russell, whose father died suddenly in Chicago last week, has returned from that city, where he attended the funeral, and has resumed his duties as clerk to Foreman J. A. Foster, of the Pennsylvania airbrake room. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schultz have also returned from Chicago, where they attended the funeral of Mr. Russell, who was her father.

The General Electric company has added two electrical trucks to its equipment. These trucks are of the latest design, equipped with electrical hoisting apparatus, which enables them to drop the platform, slip the truck under the piece it is desired to move and then to raise the platform to normal height and raise the load from the blocks upon which it had formerly rested.

The order from the war department concerning the use of dump cars on the railroads is having its effect upon improvements in trainmen's equipment. At Tiffin, O., some improvement is consuming considerable crushed stone from the quarries at Maple Grove and when the Nickel Plate put the order concerning cars into effect, it stopped the movement of stone to Tiffin. Mayor Kengel complained to Supt. W. F. Watterson and the latter has written that he will endeavor to resume carrying stone to Tiffin, but will have to use other than dump cars.

Government examiners for the applicants to the second officers' reserve training camp will be in this city July 24 to 26. Notice to this effect has been sent to all of the applicants who are recommended by the local committee under Captain E. H. Kilbourne. The examiners will have their headquarters at the Hotel Anthony, and the examinations will be held either there or at a place to be designated by the examiners. Offices will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon.

Owing to the fact that the quota for Indiana for the second camp is but 448, it is probable that the examination by the government officers will be somewhat rigid, as the utmost discrimination will be used in selecting the men. About 500 applicants were recommended from the Fort Wayne district alone. The second camp starts August 27.

Captain E. H. Kilbourne, chairman of the local examining board, and E. H. Wagner, secretary, went to Indianapolis, Thursday, to confer with officials of the training camp in regard to the applicants that have been recommended from here, and to discuss work to be done by the board in the future.

Name Appraisers.
Judge Carl Yapple, of the superior court, named Will Kaiser, A. C. Gorka and George Miller as appraisers to fix the price at which the city may sell a supply of potassium permanganate. Antwerp Boy, Member of Militia Company, Tires of Living.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Antwerp, Ohio, July 19.—Harry Currens, a member of Company B, Ohio National Guard, attempted to end his life Tuesday by slashing his throat and wrists. The company was assembled at the armory at Paulding when Currens, borrowing a knife from one of his comrades, rushed to the rear of the building. His comrade, thinking he acted strangely, followed him in a few minutes and was in time to prevent the young man from accomplishing his purpose, although he had succeeded in cutting deep gashes. He was given medical attention at once and was then returned to his home here. No cause can be assigned as to what prompted Currens to attempt the taking of his life.

INVENTED STORY TO HELP HIS BEGGING

Ex-Naval Man Started the Tale of Disaster to American Ships.

Passaic, N. J., July 19.—The man who started rumors of disaster to American warships, which grew into wild reports that the New York naval hospital was overcrowded with wounded men is believed to have been found in the persons of Charles E. Knapp, District Attorney Lynch has obtained a confession from Knapp which is said to contain a vivid picture of the imaginary blowing up of an American dreadnaught. The prisoner, who was sentenced to a year in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct probably will be the subject of a federal grand jury investigation.

Knapp's purpose in spreading the story, it is said, was to profit financially from sympathy he aroused by claiming to be one of the survivors of the "battles." He pled his begging operations successfully among sailors, soldiers and marines it is declared.

When arrested Knapp was wearing the uniform of a chief gunner's mate, and had five re-enlistment stripes on his sleeve. Lieutenant W. J. Moses, in charge of navy recognition in Newark found that Knapp was dishonorably discharged from the United States ship Hancock in 1909, and previously had been a naval prisoner on charges of desertion and drunkenness.

JAIL NO LONGER A JOKE.

It is reported from Washington that the "peaceful picketers" arrested the other day for persisting in their annoyances about the white house were greatly shocked when the district magistrate fined them $25 each with the alternative of sixty days in the work-house. Previously the fines had been light and the jail terms correspondingly short.

The picketers refused to pay fines to escape two or three days in the lockup. Jail had all the novelty of a tolerable martyrdom and the "silent sentinels" embraced the opportunity with enthusiasm. But sixty days in jail is another affair altogether. That is a real penalty—one that has accompaniment of pains, inconveniences and hardships. However, there was nothing to do save to enter into penal servitude. There could be no martyrdom in paying fines from purses well able to stand the drain or from organization funds provided for such purpose. So the ladies went to jail.

In the homes of some of these women matters were viewed differently. There were small children and husbands and such like appendages of the average domestic women. Husbands have been getting into Washington to see what might be done. A wife taking a sixty-day layoff from discharge of household cares—including, of course the little ones—and spending the vacation in jail or work-house is apt to be trying to the patience and temper of her liege. And the more so, since there appears to be no gain from the sacrifice. A martyrdom that gets nowhere but in jail and achieves nothing but an unprofitable notoriety is a great futility, indeed. Small wonder that husbands bestir themselves to get ma out of jail and home again to tend the babies and bring cook back to the orderly and well-traveled way.

President Wilson has been appealed to for performance of whatever he may be able to do in the fashion of clemency and of course he will do whatever he can. After four or five months of devoted attentions of the peaceful picketers at the white house gate he must feel some of the interest of acquaintanceship in the ladies who keep vigil about his place of abode. We look for a prompt extension of executive clemency to the ladies now under lock and key. Mr. Wilson will not be unmindful of the plight of deserted husbands and bereft babies as he considers what may be done and the unselfish good of doing it. If ma wants to go home—ma surely should have the chance.

There is interest in the announcement that the Congressional union, under whose auspices the white house is picketed, means hereafter to detail only unmarried ladies for picket duty and to do the organization's bit in jail. That will greatly simplify matters, even if it have no more effect to bring national suffrage to the women than has come out of the absurdities of the Sillie Sallies during the past five months of grotesque performance at the white house gate.

WHERE REASONS ARE OBSCURED.

There may be excellent reasons for the plans of the war department to mobilize the national guards in camps in the south, but these reasons have not been made known. On the bare face of it, the plan is well calculated to stir all the criticism that it now elicits. It means long and expensive transportation for tens of thousands of soldiers and a rather trying time of it for men not inured to southern climates. The troops from this region are to be encamped at Hattiesburg, Miss.—for anything we know a good enough place and admirably adapted to the purpose—but a long way to go for troops that are selected for that reason.

To what end these arrangements have been made those who know have not vouchsafed an explanation. Considerations of strategy may forbid or permit not to be talked of may make this disposition of a quarter of a million troops imperative. Whatever the reason, the war department keeps it securely locked away from the public knowledge. It is neither unreasonable nor surprising that in congress some questioning of this policy should be provoked. The northern states surely offer at least as many eligible campsites as the south. There could be saved the great expense and toil of long journeys for thousands of soldiers if the camps were placed with some reference to their accessibility and convenience to those troops that are to occupy them.

It may be that the climate in the south will be better for the troops of the guard, now soon to be federalized, for the work they are to do in the war than the climate of the north. It may be that there will be military gain, strategic advantage, in having so great a number of troops concentrated in the south. There may be any number of compulsive reasons for shipping the northern troops into southern states, but what they are no one outside the war department knows and it may not be compatible with public policy and the national defense for the war department to tell. But until the war department finds some way to satisfy the big query the war department may expect something of a public clamor and a continuance of criticisms in congress.

THERE WILL NOT BE TOO MUCH.

With the certain prospect of abundant crops of grain and vegetables throughout the country this year some are wondering why so much is made of the necessity to save food-stuffs. It is figured that of our surpluses the available shipping, handicapped by the U-boat campaign, will be able to transport but a fraction and that we shall carry over much into next year. That is just the idea.

No one knows how long this war is going to last. No one knows what next year's crops are going to be. No one knows to what extent nor for what term we are going to be under necessity to furnish vast bulks of food to our allies and much else to suffering neutrals. These questions touch the most vital concerns of this and our ally nations. No chances can be taken with safety. We cannot perform our part and continue the sinful practice of waste upon the scale that so long has marked American life. There is no purpose as there is no need to put this country upon short rations. There is plenty for every normal necessity and much to spare for the rest of the world. But, except there be conservation and rational economy, we shall come short and that, perhaps, at a time when it would do us the greatest harm.

The urgency for increasing production, preventing waste, for preserving foodstuffs and for practicing reasonable economy in the use of certain edibles, rests upon conditions that are real and not imagined and upon considerations of prudence that only the most foolishly fatuous and sinfully prodigal people could ignore. Whatever adds to the national security is a good thing to do, just as whatever impairs the national security is a bad thing to do. No one will question that it adds to this country's power of defense to make wholly certain that there is going to be food enough all the time.

Besides this, it is well that the people of this country go through a general and persistent training and schooling to learn to avoid waste. No other people in the world waste so much. To learn to save will be money in the pockets of everybody and more food in the bellies of the less fortunate peoples in other parts of the world where life is harder than we ever can find it. There also should be kept in mind that with the end of the war the nations against which we are fighting as well as the nations with which we are fighting will make a wild drive upon America for her food-stuffs. We shall be wise to remember that the more we have to meet that drive the less will the world's demand raise prices that we too will have to pay. There are many reasons for rational food economy and these are some of them. There are others. One good reason is enough and surely there is a good reason that is with us all the time—that it is a folly and a wickedness to make wanton waste of the abundance providence vouchsafes this land.

If Indiana is going to take any measures to make production, distribution and price of Indiana coal a source of assurance and consolation to the people it will have to be got at before long. The last half of July is well on its way and there will be a new season upon us before we or even the governor may be aware of it. There is not much of an indication that suitable arrangements are going to come without some effort of a drastic sort.

There will be less fear of and quarreling with conscription the next time an army is raised. A new thing has its friends, of course, but so have the old things, and there were many features about the volunteer system that were attractive to those who did not want to volunteer.

Indiana isn't going to get a new constitution next year, but the lady voters can keep right on getting ready to vote. The law giving them half a ballot opens the polling booths to them in the municipal elections next fall—provided the supreme court doesn't get its swatter again.

I tread the viewless hall of fantasy;
And seek through Self to find where rest may be;
I follow the Unknown, and I am free
And calm as Death.

The streams of Life flow near me, day and night;
And naught escapes nor passes from my sight;
I watch all things in passionless delight
And changeless Peace.

I love all beings—love both good and bad;
I love all faces, happy ones and sad—
I love the tortures that have set men mad
And free to Christ.

The evil deeds you do today were mine
but yesterday. 'Tis strange that lust and wine
Are often mileposts on the Path divine
That ends in God.

I judge your sins as one who understands;
The pangs you suffer once held me in bands;
Through quagmires travel we to shining sands;
Arrive we both.

Fear not—the fallen sister I hold close,
And Perjured brother—for, as Christus knows,
Within those husks their spirits are as snows
Made white—and wise.

Of those who cannot err I deem it well
That they should never know the miracle
That frames for some the ladder up from hell,
Whose rounds are sins.

I preach this grander gospel: Men shall rise
Through the low others to imperial skies;
Through lurid passions and heart-sick infamies
And win at last.

He Registered—Will He Be Called?

MAN WITH THE PLOW IS PATRIOT; FARMER BACKS FOOD CONTROL

(By HARRY B. HUNT.)

American farmers don't oppose the food control bill.

Middle west rural districts do not back the senators obstructing the administration's conservation measure.

The senators' pet argument that their tactics help the farmer is proven false by the farmer himself.

This is made clear in a letter from J. W. Shorthill, secretary of the national council of farmers' co-operative associations, to each senator.

Shorthill represents 400,000 grain growers.

"American grain growers," Shorthill tells the senate, "know if this war is to be fought effectively it is just as necessary for our president to direct food distribution as to manage army movements."

"We know if some strong arm is not ever present, ready to act promptly and decisively, the speculator will ruthlessly reap criminal profits. We know food is first, and should be first controlled."

"The grain growers are ready for food control. They welcome it. Our organization is squarely behind the president in this."

With the new corn crop still three months away, middle west corn supplies have reached the lowest point ever known.

Ohio's corn reserve is 45 per cent below the July average for the past nine years, and 29 per cent less than the previous low record.

Illinois' reserve shows a 37 per cent decrease and is 11,000,000 bushels less than her smallest July supply during the past nine years.

Indiana's corn reserve is off 23 per cent from the nine-year average and Iowa's 15 per cent.

Nebraska alone shows an increase of but 4 per cent.

Knowing the wide differences between the prices farmers received and the price at which corn was marketed in the great grain centers, the farmers in these depleted reserves additional reasons why the senate should cut further debate short and pass the bill.

"Who," members of America's greatest grain growers' organization ask, "is afraid to place the products of his labor or his genius in the hands of the president, when winning this war makes it necessary? Certainly not the grain growers of the country!"

SELLING TO UNCLE SAM.

(The Ground Hog, Cleveland, O.)

A few weeks ago there was an uproar in Little Rock, Ark. The United States government went out there to buy land for an army camp.

The owners of the land promptly doubled the price, and then raised again. The value of the land the government wanted to buy went from barely $20 per acre to over $75.

All of the newspapers promptly raised an editorial howl that could be heard from Portland to Portland (Maine and Oregon). All because someone was trying an everyday trick on Uncle Sam.

It was certainly unpatriotic for the land owners to do it, we own that. That fact in itself amply merits the condemnation. But what we do maintain is that it is no more immoral to do it to Uncle Sam than it is to any other person or company that needs the land.

The papers were right, it was unpatriotic, but they didn't go far enough and find the cure.
If these men were taxed the full value of their land, they would be glad to sell it at a reasonable price.

Every manufacturer who has wanted land for his own use has had the same experience.

The land owners demand more for their land, not because the land is more valuable, but because someone needs it.

If there were anything like a just tax on land values, Uncle Sam (which means 110,000,000 people) would have all the land he needed at a reasonable price.

STRIPES AND UNIFORMS.

(New York World.)

A sentiment commonly heard among American socialists was repeated by Frank A. Silverman, candidate of the party for controller of New York, when in an impassioned address he said: "No one can call himself a socialist who would hesitate to prefer the stripes to a uniform."

In Germany, with a few notable exceptions, socialists who are not in uniform are doing their best diplomatically to help the Kaiser out of his difficulties. In Great Britain, France, and Belgium most of the socialists are in arms against Germany. It is only in the United States that a great majority of the socialists are so opposed to all militarism except the Kaiser's that they prefer stripes to uniforms.

Putting the matter as kindly as possible to our socialistic fellow citizens who have assumed this pose, we must say to them that in due course their tastes in this matter will be fully gratified. In practically every case of resistance to the draft thus far presented to the United States courts the stripes have been furnished at once, and there is no reason to believe that the supply is anywhere near exhaustion.

SURPRISING THE WORLD.

(New York Post.)

A Spanish statesman thinks that if certain causes of discontent in his country should produce effects simultaneously, something might happen which would "surprise the world." Innocent old world! Subjected to such a series of shocks as no previous period of the same length had given it, it yet retains, in the opinion of the Spanish statesman, reserves of astonishment, unplumbed depths of amazement.

What could come as an unexpected event to a generation that had been startled by the rapidity of an invasion, held spellbound by the dramatic sweeping back of the rushing tide, and then greeted with the discovery that a new form of conflict was developing, in which success was to be obtained by the sacrifice of the element of surprise?

Then there are the happenings in Russia, in Arabia, in Africa, the revival of romantic exploits on the sea, and the realization of the poet's dream of navies crapping in the central blue. Surely but one thing is left so extraordinary as to appear in the least sensational—the idea that anybody could imagine that there might be another surprise.

TWO ESSENTIALS.

(New York Journal of Commerce.)

Two things are essential at such a time, confidence of the people in the government and trust of the government in the people. For this there must be constant mutual understanding. That means the complete knowledge practicable of what is going on, what is planned, what is accomplished and what remains to be done. This calls for the utmost publicity, the least concealment and secrecy, so far as our own people are concerned, that can be made consistent with security against the designs of our enemies.

It is questionable whether absolute and complete publicity would offer any advantage to an enemy which could not be more effectively met by reason of the influence of that same publicity upon our own forces of action and of sentiment. This may be a new doctrine, but it is peculiarly consistent with the fundamental principles upon which American institutions were founded and have been maintained. It may be applicable in any crisis which they have to go through.

STILL PLOTTING.

(New York World.)

The many indictments for conspiracy found by a federal grand jury at San Francisco against Germans and Hindus are not more important in their bearing than in their disclosures of German plotting on American soil against India and Britain a year before Germany began the great war.

The American people have been slow to awake to the stern realities of the situation as they have been quick to believe in a macabre conversion of pro-German plottings as an inevitable consequence of our entrance into the war. If now some reason is given to think that German plotters are behind the I. W. V. strikes and disorders in the copper mines of the northwest and southwest, or behind the curiously successive burning of grain elevators in parts of the west, is the reason emptied of all sense by the grand jury discovery that the Kaiser's paid agents were operating here for a war to include Great Britain even before actual war had been forced on the world to include ourselves?

The old menace is still within our doors. It was there before this war and in preparation for it. It has been there and murderously aggressive against our unsuspecting peace through the days of our striving neutrality. It is there now, and if scratched, it is not killed.

UNCLE HARRY EXPLAINS "FOOD CONSERVATION"

The children were sitting on the porch as Uncle Harry strode up the walk. The boys envied Uncle Harry's upright figure and often practiced his springs, military stride in secret.

"Hello, youngsters. I didn't see you there in the dark," and Uncle Harry took his accustomed chair. "What is it to be tonight?"

Jimmy spoke at once. "Uncle Harry," said he, "what does food conservation mean?"

"Well, Jimmy, you know what food means. Well, conservation means the saving of it, that is, not wasting it. It is said that Americans are the most wasteful people in the world and that a French family can live on what an American family throws away and this being true, it is evident that in time of war it is of the utmost importance that no food should be wasted. Not only must the armies be fed, but the people who stay at home as well, and it is up to us, everyone, to see that we waste no bread or other food."

"Well, Uncle Harry," said Helen, "I don't waste any food."

"Are you sure, Helen? When I took dinner with you a few days ago I saw a half a piece of bread left on your plate, and a whole potato which the maid took out into the pantry."

"Oh well," said Helen, "that didn't count. It wasn't much."

"That's exactly the point I want to talk to you about. It did count. Suppose 40,000,000 children did the same thing. Don't you think it would amount to much? I have no doubt millions of children did the same thing throughout the country and all those millions of pieces of bread and potatoes must have amounted to a large supply, enough to have fed hundreds of thousands of other children."

"Well," said Joe, "you can't eat up everything on your plate."

"Yes you can," said Uncle Harry, "or at least you needn't take so much on your plate."

"Let me read you a piece of writing that went to every home in Great Britain recently." And Uncle Harry fished out of his pocket a newspaper clipping and read aloud:

"I am a Slice of Bread.

"I measure three inches by two and a half and my thickness is half an inch. My weight is exactly an ounce.

"I am wasted once a day by 48,000,000 persons of Britain.

"I am—the bit left over—the slice eaten absent-mindedly when really I wasn't wanted."

"I am the waste crust."

"If you collect me and my companions for a whole week you would find that we amounted to 9,380 tons of good bread WASTED!"

"Two shiploads of good bread!"

"Almost as much—striking an average—as twenty submarines could sink—even if they had good luck."

"When you throw me away or waste me, you are adding twenty submarines to the German navy."

"Gracious," said Helen, "I never thought of that."

"I know you didn't and you are not the only one who didn't. Now if 48,000,000 Britons can add the power of twenty submarines to the German navy it is plain that the same amount of waste by 100,000,000 Americans would add at least the power of forty submarines to the Germans and we can't afford that you know."

"I should say not," said Joe. "I'm going to be more careful after this."

"You know, children, food is a most important matter. A starving army of people can't fight. In fact, Lloyd George, the British premier, practically said 'The last half billion bushels of wheat will win.'"

"What did he mean by that, Uncle Harry?" said Jimmy. "Wheat doesn't fight."

"No, Jimmy," said Uncle Harry, "but he meant that whichever side had the last half million bushels of wheat would win, and that the other side wouldn't have any and would be starving and would have to give up."

"President Wilson knows the importance of this and has appointed Herbert Hoover to be United States food administrator."

"He did a wonderful work in Belgium and is felt by most of us to be just the man to take charge of our food supply. He has issued a statement full of interesting advice. I can't read it all to you, but here are some of the important statements:

"If each person weekly saves one pound of wheat flour that means 150,000,000 more bushels of wheat for the allies to mix in their bread. This will help to save DEMOCRACY."

"If we save one ounce of meat each day per person we will have additional supply equal to 2,200,000 cattle."

"Use one-third ounce less per day of animal fat and 375,000 tons will be saved yearly."

"If every one in America saves an ounce of sugar daily it means 1,100,000 tons for the year."

"Then he winds up by giving these general rules: 1, buy less; serve smaller portions. 2, preach the 'Gospel of the Clean Plate.' 3, don't eat a fourth meal. 4, don't limit the plain food of growing children. 5, watch out for the wastes in the community. 6, full garbage pails in America mean empty dinner pails in America and Europe. Good advice, children."

"Gracious," said Helen. "I had almost decided not to eat at all, but the fourth rule you read, Uncle Harry, helps me out."

"Oh, no, Helen, don't starve yourself. But all you need, but don't waste any food. That's all that is expected or all that is necessary."

"There is a lot more I could tell you about this important subject, but bedtime has come and you had better tuck yourselves in and think over what I have said. Good night and pleasant dreams."

And Uncle Harry went home.

The house was beautifully decorated in the colors of yellow and white and the supper table with its yellow candles, yellow napkins, dainty place cards and the centerpiece, and also individual flowers at each plate, made a fitting setting for the company of young girls seated at it. The supper was an elaborate of the same coloring as the decorating. A game of progressive bunco was enjoyed before the supper, and Miss Katherine Michel won the prize.

Best of Food Needed by Men on Shipboard

(By IDA M'GLOE GIBSON.)

Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, paymaster general of the navy, was standing at his window watching a flag floating over a nearby building at Washington.

As I entered he turned and greeted me with a distant look in his eyes, as though he had been in dreams sailing with a fleet to foreign shores.

"It makes a sailor crazy," he said, "to be tied to an office chair when his country is going into war."

"But you have your work cut out for you, admiral," I said.

"Yes," he answered somewhat ruefully, as his eyes wandered to the waving flag once more.

"No fighting man in the whole army is as sticky about his food as the jackie. Of course there is good reason for this, as meals are about the only pleasure sailors have and when they are afloat they get very homesick. They have to be well fed, first. Brave men are like cowards when they are hungry."

"The American fighting man eats more vegetables than the fighting man of any other country. Last year the navy ate 24,423,000 pounds of fresh vegetables, 42,155,000 pounds of canned vegetables and 331,400 pounds of dried vegetables, against 15,375,000 pounds of fresh meat and 2,210,000 pounds of smoked meat.

BRACADES AND VELVETS WILL GET CALL IN FALL.

There is already much pleasant talk about the fashionable fabrics to be offered by the textile manufacturers for next winter, and just where the economy shoppers are going to get off we fair would predict.

According to the reports of those who have enjoyed the privilege of inspecting the early offerings from Lyons, there will be more rich velvets and expensive brocades than ever before. It doesn't look much like sackcloth and ashes for the American woman.

Both plain and fancy velvets are more delicate and of softer surface. The new velvets salambo is particularly appealing and the velvets zephyr is positively gorgeous. There is even a new mouseline velvet, beside our old-fashioned chiffon velvet appears heavy and rigid.

New checked velvets, and those bearing embossed designs, are said to be intended for suits, but we doubt it. The snows of winter cause us less distress when they land on good old woolen fabrics.

METAL OVERSHOE MEANS OF PRESERVING LEATHER

With the price of leather soaring skyward it seems to be necessary to cut down the shoe bill by increasing the efficiency of the footwear and an scheme for accomplishing this is covered by a recent patent grant for a metal overshoe.

The parts are made of thin sheet metal pressed into shape, one to fit the heel and the other covering the sole and fitting over the toe with a pivoted joint under the instep. When the shoe is slipped into the metal it is held in place by means of a strap over the instep.

The metal does not in the least interfere with the freedom of the foot and it takes up all the hard knocks of wear.

TRY GLOVE DUST CLOTH TO KEEP HANDS DAINTY

Make a new dust cloth with an attached glove and you will not have grimy fingers and nails after dusting. Sew a piece of goods eight inches square in the center of the cloth, leaving an open edge free. Mark the shape of your hand on this square with chalk or pencil and sew with the machine around the mark, having the wrist on the side left free.

TEST FRUIT JUICES BEFORE SWEETENING INSURES JELLY.

Jelly making is the most troublesome of all preserving processes. Too little or too much sugar will always spoil the jelly. To tell just how much sugar should be used with each kind of juice, place a teaspoonful of juice in a glass and add 1 spoonful of 95 per cent grain alcohol. Shake the glass gently to mix, then pour slowly and watch how the pectin—that is the substance in fruits that makes them jelly—is precipitated. If the precipitation is in one lump, a cup of sugar may be used for each of juice. Should the precipitation be in several lumps the sugar should be three-fourths the amount of juice.

Should no precipitation be shown the juice is not adapted to jelly making and should be mixed with apple or other juice rich in pectin.

CHEAPER THAN BREAD AND MORE PALATABLE

Far cheaper than bread and much more palatable are supper biscuits, made in the following manner: Take 1 gill of milk, 1 ounce of butter or margarine and 8 ounces of self-rising flour. Put the milk and butter into a

REFLECTOR TAKEN UP MOUNTAIN TO PHOTOGRAPH WONDERS OF SKY

the famous Hooker reflector up Mt. Wilson, where it will be installed in the Carnegie observatory for use in new scientific research. Anonymous letters had been received by observatory officials threatening the destruction of the huge mirror. Three armed guards watched the reflector on the circuitous trip up the mountain, and 200 spectators and a regiment of photographers followed the ascent.

The reflector, a gift of E. L. Hooker of Los Angeles, cost $50,000 and is the largest in the world, being 100 inches in diameter and 13 inches thick. It weighs four and a half tons. The rough cast was made in St. Gobain, France, in 1905. The glass was brought to Pasadena in 1909. Grinding the mirror began in 1911.

Scientists hope to reveal new celestial wonders when the new mirror is installed. According to Dr. W. S. Adams, in charge of the observatory in the absence of Dr. George Ellery Hale, now in Washington, the reflector will be in commission by September.

TOMPKINS CONFESSES

Wealthy Mine Operator is Made to Tell of the Triple Murder.

ADMITTS SLAYING THREE HUMPHRIES

Suspicion Aroused Early of His Guilt is Now Fully Verified.

Johnston, Pa., July 19.—George C. Tompkins, of Philadelphia, held in connection with the shooting to death of Edmund I. Humphries, prominent coal operator; his wife, Mrs. Carrie Humphries, and their 15-year-old son, Edmund I. Humphries, Jr., on a country road near Carrolltown, this county, last Sunday, confessed to the three murders today, according to an announcement by the police.

The confession was made in the presence of Jailer Edward Kneel, of the county jail, and Tompkins' attorneys. Tompkins was a member of the Humphries automobile party. Following the shooting he went to the home of a friend and declared the party had been held up by three masked men. He maintained that the three men shot and killed the members of the Humphries family but he escaped by falling to the ground near the automobile and pretending that he also had been shot.

Conflicts in statements made by Tompkins caused the search for the highwaymen to be called off and a coroner's jury investigating the murders ordered Tompkins held for investigation. Monday he was formally charged with the murder. Evidence against Tompkins was considered only circumstantial prior to his confession. Tompkins, the authorities announced, made a complete confession willingly and without pressure. The motive given by Tompkins for committing the murders was not immediately given out.

MORE INDICTMENTS BY FEDERAL JURY

New Batch Relates in Part to the Indianapolis Election Cases.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 19.—Twelve indictments were returned today by the federal grand jury, one of which is in connection with activities during the 1914 election in Indianapolis. Samuel V. Perrott, chief of police and five others were convicted in federal court a short time ago on an indictment charging conspiracy in this case election and the grand jury investigation was ordered re-opened as a result of testimony introduced at Perrott's trial. The names of the men named in the election indictment were not made public and it was said no arrests would be made probably before tomorrow. Joseph Zimmerman, of this city, who was arrested at South Bend, charged with uttering false statements in a street speech, was indicted under the espionage law. The section he is accused of violating provides a maximum penalty of twenty years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

The other indictments charge "bootlegging" at Fort Benjamin Harrison and selling liquor to soldiers in uniform.

BALL CLUB TO HELP BATTERY

Proceeds from Sale of Booster Tickets Will Be Donated.

PROMINENT WOMEN AGREE TO ASSIST

Local Company is Badly in Need of Money to Meet Current Expenses.

With a very commendable spirit, the Fort Wayne Base Ball association has risen to the occasion and will very materially assist Battery B's company fund. The officers have very kindly offered to donate the proceeds of the sale of "Booster" tickets to the local artillery unit. The sale of the tickets will commence on Monday and will be handled by several young ladies of this city, under the chaperonage of a number of ladies who have consented to act as patronesses for Battery B.

Seeing what other cities have done for their batteries, Indianapolis with a fund of over $3,000, and Lafayette with nearly $2,500, local friends of the boys got busy late Wednesday afternoon with the above results. These tickets will be good for any game next week and as some good teams are scheduled all will get their money's worth. On several days added features will enliven the program.

The Majestic theater management has donated the use of that place for headquarters and Mr. John Essig will superintend the placing of the tickets. A meeting of all the ladies in the city who are willing to assist in the sale will be held at this place on Friday afternoon at 2:30 to perfect plans and complete the organization. It is hoped that a large number of the ladies of the city, particularly the young ladies, will attend this meeting and assist in this very worthy cause. Already assistance has been promised from the girls of the Red Cross, several of the ladies' Auxiliaries of G. A. R., Union Veterans legion, Sons of Veterans, Polish War veterans, King's Daughters and Railroad organizations. A number of the individual workers have made the campaigns for the help of St. Joseph and Lutheran hospitals, such a success, have promised aid and will attend the meeting.

Need and Use of Fund. That a company fund is one of the very valuable assets of a military company is well known by all who have served or who have studied military conditions. This is doubly true of the local command, as it is practically a volunteer organization, with no funds to start with. The Commercial club extended aid to recruiting the local units to the fullest extent of their resources. When this was exhausted about six weeks ago, the work was taken up by the men and officers of the battery at their own expense and at considerable sacrifice on their part. At that time Battery B had secured about 73 members. Today they have over 150 accepted by the medical ex-

Young Man is Given Promotion

ARTHUR F. BOVINE.

Arthur F. Bovine, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bovine, 940 Cottage avenue, a member of the Eleventh United States Cavalry. Troop K, has been promoted to corporal, according to word received from him by his parents.

Bovine is one of the youngest boys to enlist from Fort Wayne. He entered into the service on February 28 and has been promoted after serving only five months, which is very unusual. He is now stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

PREDICTED TROUBLE THAT ROCKS RUSSIA

Minister of Justice Saw Outbreak of Bolsheviks Coming.

Stockholm, July 19.—Monday's events in Petrograd and the extent of armed disaffection were forecast nearly a month ago by M. Pereverzeff, Russian minister of justice. In an interview with a correspondent of a Stockholm paper, he said:

"I am convinced that the Bolsheviks will soon carry their activities to a crisis, compared with which all their previous crimes will have been a mere trifle. When that day comes, and it will come soon, it will be time to make a final reckoning with this lawless element. We reckon that the Bolsheviks already have two machine gun regiments of desperate men who sleep with weapons beside their beds."

Monday's riots in connection with resignation of finance minister Shingareff, which is generally considered to indicate critical financial situation in Russia, caused a drop in the ruble exchange rate of four points to 69.

Active Bolshevik propaganda work is being conducted here, especially among returning Russian emigrants by various agents of Socialist Lenin's faction, including especially two women. One of them accompanied Robert Grimm, the socialist internationalist and German agent, from Switzerland, through Germany, to Russia in May. He was expelled from Russia as a result of efforts on the part of the Germans to conclude a peace with Russia.

aminer, with 18 on a list awaiting the examinations.

All proceeds over the actual expenses of the campaign will be turned over to Captain Harry Clark, commanding Battery B. Among the many things needed in camp to make the life of the men more comfortable are wash tubs, wash basins, lumber for tent floors, wire netting for screening kitchens and mess shacks, ticks to be filled with straw for the men to sleep on, etc. When it is considered that the allowance for "eats" is only an average of 30 cents per day it can very readily be seen that a few dollars to purchase vegetables, etc., is very acceptable.

As an example of the spirit of the men of the battery, it may be said that three of the non-commissioned officers of that unit have donated their entire time for the past six weeks to recruiting work, with no remuneration for it, as the federal government does not pay the pay of the men until their entrance into service. Printing, stationery, signs, etc., have also added to the expense.

It is believed that the public will be glad to assist the men who will bear the country's flag to France and that the response to the sale of tickets will be large. The patronesses for the battery are as follows:

Patronesses of Battery B. Mrs. M. Meriwether, Mrs. W. H. Rohan, Mrs. A. S. Bond, Mrs. A. E. Fauve, Mrs. A. J. Detzer, Mrs. J. H. Gilpin, Mrs. Stephen Callahan, Mrs. Harry Hogan, Mrs. Arnold Tresselt, Mrs. Hal Rehner, Mrs. A. E. Zuber, Mrs. A. K. Remmel, Mrs. Florence Kemp, Mrs. Emma Henderson, Miss Alice Knight, Mrs. Charles E. Bond, Mrs. Austin Suits, Mrs. E. H. Kilbourne, Mrs. Rose Sutton, Mrs. Elsie Drebbelgus, Mrs. Dan Beers, Mrs. E. Lewis, Mrs. Levi A. Todd, Mrs. Fred McCulloch, Mrs. W. C. Cleary, Mrs. O. L. Bickel, Miss Louise Pixley, Miss Margaret Vesey, Miss Hilda Ironsmer, Expect Call Soon.

Officers state that the mobilization call has been expected every day this week. It is their opinion that they will be at Fort Benjamin Harrison by the middle of next week. They also express the idea that a recruiting party will be sent back to Fort Wayne in order to recruit this organization to war strength. If the required number are not received in this manner the ranks will be filled up by draft.

An important drill of the battery will be held Thursday evening and all members are ordered to report at the court house at promptly 8 o'clock.

Recruiting work was at a standstill from 3:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, giving the details an opportunity of attending the funeral and burial services of a comrade at Lindenwood.

Mobilize Aug. 5. Adjutant General Smith has prepared a proclamation for issuance, drafting the entire Indiana national guard into federal service as of Aug. 5, in compliance with the order of President Wilson mobilizing the national guard of all states for war service. The call in Indiana will bring to the colors approximately 8,500 men (the number now enlisted in the guard) and more may be mobilized by Aug. 5 because of enlistments between now and then.

The proclamation is formal and based entirely on the president's call. General Smith said it would bring into federal service all organizations of the Indiana guard, which have been recognized by the federal government, regardless of whether the new units have been inspected by federal inspectors.

COMMITTEE FALTERS ON SALARY RAISE

Much Missionary Work Will Be Needed for Council Members.

The council committee may make a negative report on the petition to grant even a $1,800 salary for Carl Getz, city forester, and Charles J. Stelss, secretary of the park commission. At the committee meeting Wednesday night it was admitted by two members of the council body that much missionary work will be necessary among the city fathers if any increase at all is allowed the park employees.

Members of the park board, who attended the Wednesday evening conference, stated that they believed Getz and Stelss can be retained if paid $1,800 each, although Getz has said positively that only $2,000 will hold him as forester. Councilmen Hartman and Schlebecker, who attended the joint meeting, are mildly in favor of allowing a slight raise for the park men in the August budget.

WILL EXPRESS SELVES.

Many Citizens Will Voice Street Paving Views.

A number of tax-paying citizens are expected to attend the board of works meeting Thursday evening and to tell what kind of material they favor for paving the streets before their homes. Many citizens have expressed their sanction of the materials selected by the board of works members on Monday. Others do not want the coverings suggested by the board and will so state.

The materials which the board members have chosen are: Brick for Liberty, Osage and Wall streets and bituminous concrete for Coombs, Grace, Garden, Kinnaird avenue, Lake avenue, Laselle, Wildwood avenue and Webster street.

Enjoys Release. Deputy City Clerk Leroy Swartz is enjoying a release Thursday afternoon. The endless chain of letters asking about draft numbers is broken. Only two of the query notes were received Thursday noon. The deputy has answered more than 300 letters in regard to the new conscription numerals.

To Sell New Drinks. The new beverages of bevo and bergo will be sold in city parks along with pop and confections. Park board members ruled on Wednesday night that the sale of the non-intoxicants should be allowed.

Birth Record. Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Klaren, 538 LaSalle street—a boy. To Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kopp, rural route No. 6—a girl.

Building Permit. A building permit was issued to J. A. Pfeiderer to build a frame residence at 2410 Maumee avenue, $3,000.

ACCIDENT CASE WILL TEST STATE STATUTE

George Shigley Charged With Failure to Report Crash.

An array of attorneys will battle over word meanings in a thorough test of the state law when George Shigley, of Bluffton, is tried in city court next Thursday on a charge of failing to report an accident. The state code states that a citizen must report a smash when he is responsible for the affair.

Who is to determine who is responsible for an accident? This is the question about which the legal warfare will be waged.

The accident occurred a week ago Saturday night. No police report was entered at the time, it is claimed. Shigley was driving an automobile which apparently ran wild, near the corner of Broadway and Taylor streets. In order to avoid a street car the man is said to have driven his automobile against a wagon and then up on the sidewalk.

A couple walking on the sidewalk were hit and injured. Miss Luella Beneke, 1207 Taylor street, sustained a sprained ankle and Ino Decker, 1109 Barr street, had his hip fractured.

Many witnesses will be called in the case, including occupants of the street car and people residing near the scene of the accident. A part of the witnesses state that Shigley was intoxicated. Attorneys for the defendant asked that the case be continued for Thursday morning in order that they might have more time to prepare a defense.

In high explosives the British production is now sixty-six times what it was in January, 1915.

TEN MARKED HIGHWAYS

Fort Wayne Will Fare Well in System of Trails in Indiana.

TO ESTABLISH O. I. M. HIGHWAY SOON

Martin H. Luecke Named President of Details Committee.

Before the summer is over Fort Wayne is to have ten marked highways or trails leading in and out of the city which start somewhere and go somewhere.

The entire state will be marked with a comprehensive system of automobile trails, according to the plan which was adopted at a meeting of the State Automobile association held in Indianapolis. Martin H. Luecke, of Fort Wayne, was named president of the committee on details.

In the near future a meeting will be held in Fort Wayne for the establishment of one of these trails. It will be known as the O. I. M. trail, leading from Cincinnati, O., to Kalamazoo, Mich., and passing through Fort Wayne. Other points which will be taken in on this trail will be Richmond, Winchester, Portland, Decatur, Auburn, Kendallville and Sturgis.

The president of the chamber of commerce of Kalamazoo and the president of the automobile association of Cincinnati have endorsed the movement and have promised to assist in the realization of this plan.

These trails, which are to be laid out over the entire state, are to connect routes already marked and to be marked in adjoining states and to pass through practically every county seat in the state. The plan is to have a distinctive marking painted on the telephone or telegraph poles along these trails. Three before arriving at each turn and three after leaving same will be the letter "L" or "R" signifying left or right on the first pole. Four poles or right on each crossroad and an occasional pole between the crossroads are also to be marked with the same emblem. The selection of the roads to be marked will be left to the judgment of the superintendent of highways and the automobile clubs along the routes.

Each one of the separate roads or trails will be marked with a different emblem and each trail will have the same emblem throughout its course. This will enable all travelers in automobiles to follow the routes with ease.

List of Trails.

The other trails which will pass through Fort Wayne or begin here are: The Lincoln highway, which has already been established and marked.

The Hoosier highway, which begins at Bryan, Ohio, and goes to Vincennes, Ind. It travels through the following cities: Fort Wayne, Bluffton, Hartford City, Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis and points south.

The Wabash way, which travels from Fort Wayne to Danville, Ill., and takes in the following cities: Huntington, Wabash, Logansport, Lafayette. This road follows the Wabash railroad and the Wabash river.

Yellowstone trail begins at Portland, Oregon, and goes as far east as Puget Sound. The trail begins at Hammond and passes through Valparaiso, Plymouth, Columbia City, Fort Wayne, Defiance, Fremont and east of Puget Sound.

The Fort Wayne and Battle Creek route begins in this city and goes to Battle Creek by the way of Auburn, Angola and Coldwater.

One of the most important factors in the O. I. M. way, which will be the first to be established, is that two branches of the Dixie highway will be connected. It will connect an eastern route at Cincinnati and a western route at Kalamazoo, which will give travelers a direct route from the Ohio city to the Michigan city.

A. E. Nissen, a representative of the Rand McNally Co. of Chicago, was in the city Wednesday consulting with Mr. Luecke in regard to the system of trails. He also gave valuable information as he assisted in the establishing of trails throughout the state of Illinois. The plan is to have the trails of Indiana and Illinois connect as well as all other adjoining states.

After the trails have been established and properly marked a complete map of these trails and their markings will be put on the market so that it will be the easiest thing in the world for automobile tourists to find their way from one city to the other.

Fort Wayne by virtue of its location will profit greatly by this system of trails. In addition to being the center of some of the best and most traveled trails of the state, it will also be in the route of some of the heaviest traveled roads.

Not only will these trails bring thousands of tourists to the city every year, but they will be a great incentive in keeping the roads leading in and out of Fort Wayne in the best of condition.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN PARIS. Paris, July 13.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., arrived from New York today and was greeted by the prefect of the department in behalf of the French government. American naval and medical missions and a number of American ambulance workers also arrived on the same steamer.

To equip a British sailor takes nearly eight times as many workmen as are required to provide a soldier with all he needs in the way of munitions.

FIREMAN ANSWERS TO CUPID'S CALL

Heiny Guth and Lena Schumaker Are Married at Jackson, Mich.

Heiny Guth, second lieutenant at the No. 1 fire station, has heard the call of the little love god above the clang of alarm bells. He went to Jackson, Mich., with Lena Schumaker, Wednesday, and the pair were united in marriage. They will return to Fort Wayne on Friday and make their home here.

City firemen were not expecting the event. There was nothing strange in the fact that Guth took his day off Wednesday. His comrades did wonder, however, when a substitute fireman reported for duty in place of Guth on Thursday. Inquiries bore out the suspicion that he was married.

Miss Schumaker has been engaged as a housekeeper for Mrs. Mary Ewing, 423 West Main street, for some time. She is known as a most dependable woman. She will return to the Ewing home for a few weeks, until another housekeeper can be secured.

The couple are spending two days with relatives in Michigan. The husband will return to his place at the fire station Friday evening. There will be new zeal in his fire fighting.

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE OF OTTOMAN POWER

Detention of Turkish Students in New York Has Harsh Come-Back.

Berlin, Tuesday, July 17.—(Via London, July 18.)—Dr. Achmed Emin Bey, editor of the Constantinople Daily Sabah, one of a party of Turkish journalists who are at present guests of the German government, told the Associated Press today that the Turkish government withdrew the special train arranged for Americans who wished to depart from Turkey as a result of a report made by the former Turkish consul general at New York on his arrival at Constantinople that the American government had refused to permit Turkish students in New York to return with the officials.

"There is much feeling in Turkey as the result of the action of the United States," said the "and reprisals are being urged on our government. When the issue came our government offered to place at the disposal of American citizens a special train in which they might travel in comfort on their way to Switzerland. After we learned the attitude in America toward the Turkish students, the government withdrew the offer of travel accommodations."

"When the war began our government closed the English, French and Russian schools and seized their property. Robert College at Constantinople (an American institution), was not molested, however, and it still is open. There are about 400 Americans still in Turkey."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HOST READY TO HELP

Boston, July 19.—Enrollments for the Christian Endeavor army of universal patriotic service, have already reached many thousands under the plan suggested by the trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor at their recent meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., according to Dr. Francis E. Clarke, the society's president. Dr. Clarke said the army aimed at a membership of at least one million. The enlistment pledge binds each member, whether in or out of the ranks of the organized war forces of the United States, to some form of service as a Christian, loyal to God and country.

Dr. Clarke said the plans had received the approval of President Wilson. It also was approved by Herbert C. Hoover and other men throughout the country. He deprecated the fact that he had seen in many newspapers "a more or less sneering and supposedly humorous allusion" to a suggestion made at the Winona Lake meeting that cigarettes should be left out of the comfort bags sent by Endeavorers through the Red Cross to soldiers and sailors.

PERSHING NEEDED RED CROSS THINGS

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Hurry orders which resulted in thousands of comfort kits being rushed to Red Cross headquarters here by the chapters in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore some time ago were explained today by officers of the Red Cross war council who said the kits were requested by the war department for General Pershing's forces in France. In a message of thanks for the gifts General Pershing said:

"These things cause the soldier to remember that the people at home are behind him. You do not know how much that means to any soldier who is over here carrying the flag for his country. This is the point which should be impressed in the minds of those who are working for the soldier."

PASSING OF SOUTHERN CONVICT CAMPS

Nature, in Running Out of Great Pine Forests for the Production of Turpentine, Seems to Be Aiding Legislation in Doing Away with the Old System.

BY MARC N. GOODNOW.

It was a typically beautiful midwinter Sunday in Central Florida. A tramp of several miles through the whispering pines of a turpentine forest had brought a party of tourists to a clump of rough, whitewashed, board buildings situated in the white sand close to a railroad. From a distance the largest building had the appearance of a warehouse or a stable surrounded by a high board fence or stockade. It was a story and a half high, three as long as its width, with windows along the sides, heavily barred.

At diagonally opposite corners of the high stockade were rudely constructed platforms, each sheltered by a roof of pine boards. Beneath each shelter sat a young man, lazily smoking a cigarette, with an ominous, long-barreled pistol beside him.

Near the railroad stood another low, white building. Inside another enclosure was a small, one-story shack, from one end of which a cloud of smoke issued, proclaiming the kitchen. Farther back in the same enclosure was another shack, open on three sides, and a pig pen.

In the middle of the sandy yard stood a well, fed from surface water and the excess of the bayou more than a mile away. There were no trees, no grass, no shade of any kind, nothing but hot, white sand and a few stumps.

A lean, swarthy man of 35 years, wearing the ubiquitous black slouch hat, and known by the official title of "Captain," welcomed the rather curious visitors, and with some show of native pride even invited them to take a look about the camp—the camp being a prison, housing some forty negro convicts.

"Sunday mornin' the men spend in cleanin' up, takin' baths and changin' clothes," drawled the captain, as the big gate of the stockade swung open and a growing pile of soiled, striped flannel garments became conspicuous. There was the unique sight of a score of nude convicts, exchanging soiled garments for fresher ones. Their glistening bodies were burnished bronze in the strong sunlight, and their huge, knotted muscles played under the skin like great cables.

The interior of the bunkhouse and messroom was even more crude as a place in which to live than the exterior as a means of shelter. No attempt had been made to "finish" the building, as craftsmen would say; that is, to cell, or plaster, or remove the bare effect of rafters and boards. A barricade of heavy timbers set vertically from floor to roof formed a partition between messroom and sleeping quarters. Next to the only door of the building was a small cage of heavy timbers and furnished with a small heating stove and a chair for the guard who kept night vigil over the forty sleeping convicts.

Sans Knives, Sans Forks.

Two zinc-covered tables to the right of the entrance formed the dining board; boxes and broken chairs formed the seat. In a corner close by stood a sink and basin where the dishes were washed. Only dishes, pans and spoons are used inside this stockade. There are no knives or forks (except for garden and guards). Fingers were made first; besides, knives and forks are much too ugly as weapons in a jail.

In the same room, at the corner farthest from the door, were two cracked porcelain-lined tubs set in an unscreened space, merely surrounded by torn wire netting. Several more broken chairs and boxes and a heating stove within a wooden pen completed the furniture and equipment of the messroom. On one wall hung an illumination of the ten commandments and several illustrated poems. On another wall hung the rules and regulations of the state prison authorities, almost too black from soot and grime to be deciphered. Except for these wall decorations, there was no evidence anywhere of any feeding matter.

The bunkroom was a long, low compartment filled with iron beds supporting filthy mattresses. The floor was bare and reasonably clean, and the entire interior smelled strongly of a mixture of formaldehyde and other disinfectants.

"The beds are a bit old," was the explanation volunteered, "but we've made a regulation for new ones. We disinfect every other day and scrub the floor every morning. Sunday morning, of course, the men always take their time about things."

In the messroom the prisoners were singing and laughing and telling jokes. In one corner a black figure was just emerging from his "tub"; in another, the battle of tin and granite dishes told of preparations for dinner.

"Where's Charlie Jackson?" called the captain, and two barefooted men shambled off to find Jackson. Presently the most genial smile one ever saw peered around the jamb of the door, and a slender young negro of 30 years shuffled into the room.

"Charlie," said the captain, "let's have a little harmonizin'."

"Yassah, boss," he smiled, and forthwith assembled his troupe of vaudeville entertainers. Charlie disappeared for a moment and returned in his theatrical rigging of false whiskers, crooked cane, corncob pipe, straw hat and a bend in his back which, with one arm akimbo, proclaimed him old "Uncle Eph" in the original skit, The Old Plantation. "Eph" had returned after forty years' absence to see his "old mammy and the chillun'."

"Mammy Liza" was enacted by a young buck with a bandanna tied about his head and falling over his shoulders.

Camp Meeting Songs.

In the midst of this skit, in which "Uncle Eph" referred to his children generally as "big hunks o' midnight," and in which each was letter perfect, they broke into the song, "Pickin' Cotton," which was the cue for "buck and wing" dancing. Each of the seven indulged in his own brand of dancing and executed steps one never saw before—in shoes and bare feet.

Some one pitched a quarter to the floor, and the antics of the dancer in picking up the coin threw the observers into spasms of laughter. Then followed a series of "plantin' and camp-meeting songs and hymns by another set of singers—curiously enough, the most vicious men in the camp. It was said,

"Almost every night it's just like this," said a guard. "They go over this stuff time and again. They gave a minstrel show last Christmas and made quite a lot of money from the visitors."

"Don't they do it largely to forget they are here?"

"All their singing and dancing wouldn't make them forget that," answered the guard, with a significant glance. "But after the first three or four months the tragedy wears off and they get to be like the fellows who have been here for years. It's the man who first comes to one of these camps that broods and gets sullen and is always thinking of getting away.

That's the dangerous time, when he has to be watched, and about the only time when he tries to break camp. I could almost tell you how long every man has been in this stockade simply by the look on his face."

All the men were in their bare feet, feet, too, that were swelled and misshapen almost beyond recognition. They were spread out, broken down, cut, gauged, blistered and scratched; and the nails of many of their toes were gone. It is hard to imagine what comfort such feet will ever find in the shoes of civilized society when released from prison conditions finally comes.

"Niggah's dat fast comes heah," said Charlie's mate at the grindstone. "What ain't use to bein' on dey feet, gits fagged easy an' hit mek dey feet swell up sumpin' awful, boss. Dat's why dey all goes barefoot in de stockade an' round' camp. Dey shoes ain't big enough for dey feet. Mine doan swell no mo'."

The "Captain" had neglected to mention that while his visitors were being shown through the camp, a negro convict was being chased through the woods several miles away in the regular Sunday morning rehearsal. This was a weekly practice for the purpose of keeping the dogs' sense of smell keenly whetted to a point of instant usefulness in case of an attempted escape.

BASEBALL

When the visitors emerged from the mess and bunk rooms into the stockade they were amused by the sight of a shining black figure devouring with profound relish a huge "siver" of possum, but had no idea that the fellow had worked and dodged his way for an hour ahead of the dogs in order to acquire it.

The work is so arranged that the squads arrive at a certain stage of their rounds on certain days of the week. The entire territory is covered between early Monday morning and Friday night or Saturday noon. But it is constant and heavy work. A soft pitch is gathered from the open face of the blazed tree from March to October. From October to March the gum must be scraped or pulled from the tree. The still, in which the gum and pitch are transformed into spirits of turpentine, is located near the camp, and is kept supplied by teamsters and their wagons. A barrel of soft pitch produces approximately ten gallons of spirits of turpentine. In a single charge of ten barrels of scrapings, or gum, there are about six barrels of resin and two year trees, and another "back-box" older trees that are sufficiently large to yield still more resin.

Work of the Convicts.

These convicts are worked in three or four squads, each in charge of one or two guards and several cur dogs. One squad may "box" virgin trees, another dip fresh pine pitch, another scrape third-year trees, another "pull" fourth-year barrels of spirits. The stills run two charges a day ordinarily, and produce from 100 to 120 gallons of turpentine in one charge.

July and August, the rainy season in Florida, are the worst months of the year for ague, chills, fever, pneumonia and the like. Then it rains almost every day and the water floods the country.

"Dat's de time when it gits you," said a convict in a whisper. "Mah Gawd, man, hit's sho' awful, standin' in walah an' runnin' all day long in the wet grass up to yo' waist. Why, man, ah's got a lump in mah chest right now as big as yo' fist. Every man in this heah camp has got sumpin' the matter of him."

In 1910, Gov. Gilchrist considered twenty deaths among 1781 prisoners a low rate, because "no many are diseased before entering the camps."

Reward for Industry.

All prisoners are worked on the task system, and if they finish their work on Friday evening or early Saturday morning, they have the balance of the week in which to rest. This system, inspectors say, has been the means of getting good work out of the men without punishment. But there are many camps where there is entirely too much punishment, where the wardens and guards are not at all suited to their positions.

When you cut or burn your finger and run to the medicine cabinet for a bottle of spirits of turpentine, you seldom stop to think of the way in which this medicine is gathered; how much more of pain it involves than the pain you seek to allay by its use, what bodily and mental travail, what cost in human life.

At the time of my visit to this Florida camp, 1800 or more convicts were leased by the state to one company—the Florida Pine Company—for the sum of $232.84 per convict annually, and in turn subleased to individual turpentine distillers operating the thirty-one convict camps of the state, for the sum of $100 a year apiece. Thus the Florida Pine Company was collecting the tidy little sum of about $76 per annum upon the labor of between 1400 and 1800 convicts—a total of perhaps $192,000 a year. This company paid to the state one year for the use of convicts $207,115.48. The arrangement was so satisfactory and profitable to both parties that the lease was renewed in 1909 for a period of four more years; and on January 1, 1914, a number of leases were renewed for two years.

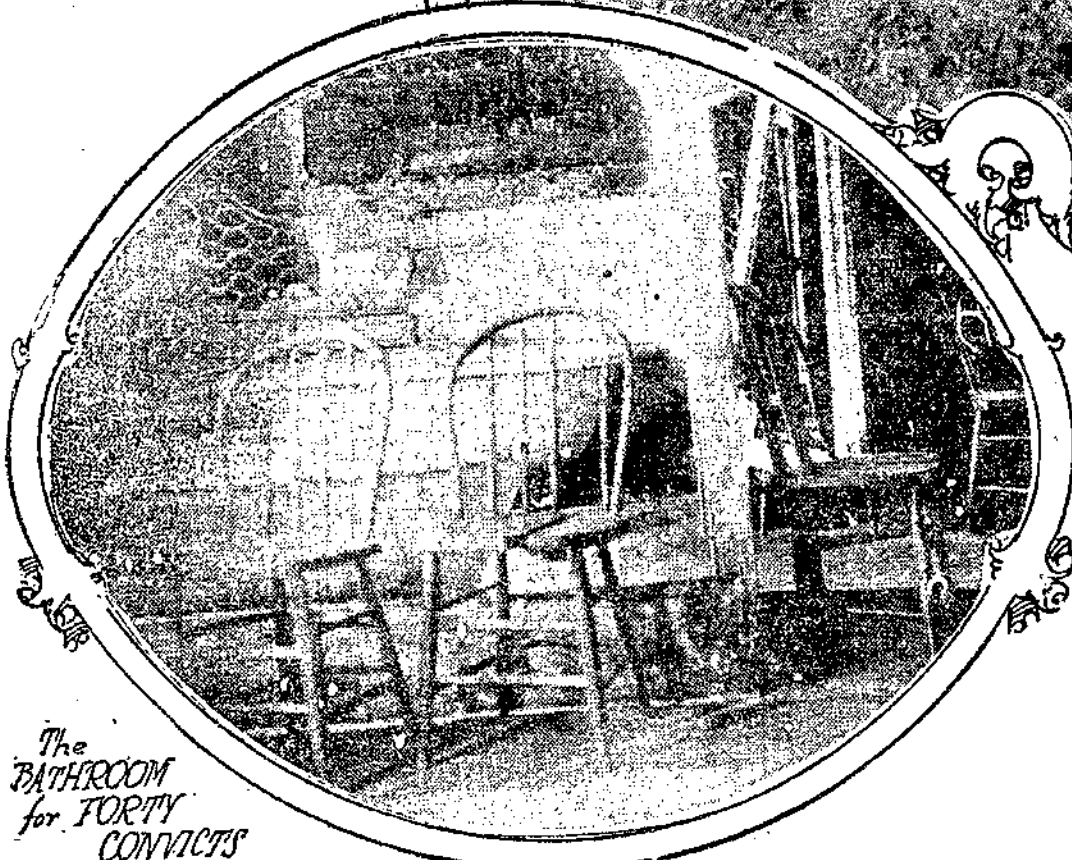

All the convict got out of this sum was a whitewashed stockade, work the year round in all kinds of fever and weather, punishment with a leather strap for infraction of rules or lagging at work, no energy left for overtime work, even if he were paid for it, and no money for those who might be dependent upon him.

And then, as if the system were incompatible with nature herself, the millions of pine trees began each year to lose their productivity so it was no longer profitable to operate the camps, a number of which went out of existence when the four-year lease expired in 1914, and others followed, so that the state, both from necessity and policy, provided by statute for the care of its convicts on a state prison farm in Bradford County.

The bill provided that after January 1, 1914, all new prisoners should be placed on the state farm, except that able-bodied ones could be delivered to private leasees or to counties, to replace those whose sentences might have expired or who might have become hospital subjects. An time goes on, the solution, if it can be called that, of the state convict from the turpentine camp to the prison farm becomes a gradual and much-desired process.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an infected condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, etc.

RUSSIANS BURN SECRET POLICE RECORDS

Russian revolutionists have burned the records of the terrible secret police. There was great rejoicing as these records, here shown in a great heap for the flames, went up in smoke. The czar used these records to oppress and exile Russians whose work for liberty was obnoxious to him. This mass of paper was one of the mainstays of the old autocracy. This is the first picture of the burning to reach America.

Dayton Outfit Takes First Game of Series From Chiefs

All Home Clubs in the Central Lose Yesterday's Encounters.

When every home club in the Central circuit was losing its Wednesday game, it would have been dirty stuff for the Chiefs to spoil the coincidence and the Chiefs did a clean playing, and the Chiefs lost, 5 to 2. Jack Rowan was the opposing hurler and at times it looked like a shame to work him, but he got away and got away big. One bad inning for Doc Cummins put the wheat ball phenom to the bad.

In passing it might be well to state that Umpire Kuhns put in a most miserable day, not that there is any great kick coming on his decisions, but he was badly abused. No less than three times did he intercept the hottest variety of foul tips with his right foot. Another time he took an awful blow on the top of his head, which staggered him. Last, but not least, while negotiating the green between third and home, he took the pettiest brodie yet seen on the lot. His spill was graceful enough to warrant him a job in the highest class of slap stick and pie-throwing movie comedy, and the fans rudely howled with delight.

Four errors led a large part of the story of yesterday's defeat. On one attempt they handed Jack Rowan a run in which that individual should have been caught flatfooted three different times. A wide throw to first gave him a life there and when he started plodding to second Williams had him caught three times over, but while he was waiting for Jack to approach within touching distance, he calmly allowed the pill to slip out of his paw and Jack was safe once more.

The Chiefs couldn't hit anything. Rowan held them to four hits. He had the best of them standing up there, whiffing like school boys, and the hardest hitters on the club were not immune from going to the high ones and letting the groovers ride past.

Scoring started in the first inning when Tepe was given a chance at first through an error. He went to the key-stone on a neat sacrifice and did the rest of the circuit on Stewart's single. Egnfried singled after Breaux had gone out in the first and took third when Rowan heaved to the grand stand trying to catch him napping. He remained at third while Smith went out, but after Hoffman had walked, the pair of them went through with a double steal which produced results.

The next score came in the fifth when Rowan was given a run on a piece of disorganization and punk playing. Smith led the score in the sixth when he walked, stole second and completed the run on an out and a sacrifice.

Then came the big blow. Nee started with a single and took second on a sacrifice. Rowan singled and stole second. Tepe was passed loading the bases and hits by Kopping and Stewart produced the three runs. Stewart was forced at second and the inning closed when Breaux did a hurdy-durdy dash in about three seconds and took a fly while speeding at something like sixty-three per hour. In the seventh the locals had a chance to take the score but they flivvered and the stuff was off.

The eighth inning was a marvel of speed on both sides. In the first half Cummins pitched but three balls. The first was hit for a double, but the second man popped up to the pitcher for a double play and the third delivery was hit for a fly to Breaux. In the first half Rowan retired the Chiefs with six pitched balls.

After losing the first game and taking considerable riding from the stands the players will probably work a little harder and see what they can do towards cleaning up on their opponents during the day at home. That would be a good idea and would help the popularity of the club more than talking back to the kidders who are doing their best to enjoy themselves.

In spite of the absence of specific allusion to glass in the sacred writings the Hebrews probably were aware of the invention, which, perhaps, dates back to the time of Joseph, 3,500 years ago.

When the Band Began to Play! All Workers Quickstepped for Blocks Around! It Pays

When the band began to play! It was high noon. The typewriters of all the stenographers were silent, permitting the music to steal in the midway hush up walls, in windows, around corners, and down alleys.

All the workers of the district got back to work earlier than usual because the waitresses tangoed up and down with the dishes at double-quick and the elevator boys, keeping time, speeded up.

Traffic was accelerated as the traffic cops turned the pedestrian signs in unison with a quickstep march.

In an attempt to play "Stars and Stripes Forever" on her typewriter one private secretary got the old man's letters off in time for him to sign expected to result.

CENTRAL LEAGUE.

Grand Rapids Wins.

Evansville, Ind., July 19.—When Turner fell down on the job for two innings of yesterday's game with Grand Rapids, the visitors came through with the necessary runs to win, 5 to 2. Faeth was weak at times but high class support saved him from trouble.

Kahler Holds Richmond. Richmond, Ind., July 19.—Kahler, of the Muskies, held in the pinches of yesterday's game, while his clubmates were backing him up with lots of hitting and the combination beat Richmond 9 to 3. Ten walks and one man hit should have given the locals enough to win one but they couldn't connect. Kirby, of Muskegon, was the hitting demon of the day, getting three runs and hitting in the same number.

Pearla Flunks Out.

Peoria, Ill., July 19.—Peoria was unable to give Springfield anything to worry about in yesterday's game and the league leaders walked off with a 7 to 6 win. Good hitting and perfect hitting on the part of the Reapers left the locals without a chance.

Pirates Win Twice.

Boston, July 19.—The Pirates turned on the Braves here yesterday and took both games of a double-header. The first was theirs 8 to 6 and the second 3 to 2. Rudolph was batted hard in the second encounter, while Steele went six innings, allowing six hits before he was yanked in favor of Carlson, who finished the game without a hit. In the second game King stole second and brought in the winning run in the ninth on Rudolph's wild pitch. Score: R.H.E. #### White Sox Grab Both.

Chicago, July 19.—Two more were chalked up in the win column for the White Sox yesterday when they won from Washington 4 to 0 and 7 to 4. In the first game Benz held the Senators to three hits while the hose were pounding out eight and making their quartet of runs. In the second contest the Senators were hitting demons but short on the scoring end. They hit for eleven safeties while the Sox only took six. Score: R.H.E. ### One Apele for These.

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—The Tigers had to be satisfied with another split yesterday, winning the first game 4 to 1 and losing the second 4 to 3. Both contests were tight hitting affairs, with runs due mainly to passes, errors and "boners." Score: R.H.E. ### Close One to Boston.

St. Louis, July 19.—Mays was on the firing line for the champions yesterday afternoon and held the Browns to four hits and won his game 1 to 0. The Browns battled to the finish, Manager Jones rushing pinch hitters to the front in the eighth inning. However, Mays was too strong and the locals could not break through his defense. Les Mays was in the Brown lineup at second base. Score: R.H.E. Boston.....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 8 0 St. Louis.....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 4 2 Batteries—Mays and Agnew; Koob, Rogers and Severid.

MAGNATES SOMETIMES SELL STARS, BUT NEVER THE BIG DRAWING CARDS

(By Paul Purman).

If a wise fan would make a couple of mental reservations and grin broadly when you hear a report of the sale of Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb, Grover Alexander or George Sisler.

The idea comes from a report that Washington was about to sell Johnson a few days ago.

Fact is, these four men are unbuyable. Even at the present monumental prices for good ball players practically all figures would be too small to remove one of these men from the club with which he is affiliated.

This is not alone on account of their wonderful playing, more perhaps on account of their drawing power.

When Detroit is playing anywhere around the circuit the fan goes primarily to see Cobb in action, secondarily to see power in the game, which lasted the game.

For this reason Cobb probably will never be put on the market even though he should slip badly, for so long as he is able to put on a uniform and appear on the field he will be a drawing card.

The same holds with Johnson, Alexander and Sisler.

Washington is a poor drawing club. But receipts are boosted almost 100 per cent when Johnson is slated to pitch. It is not likely Johnson would be sold when he draws as much as the rest of the club combined.

There have been few men in baseball in this category. Matthewson was one. As long as Matty could toe the slab there was no chance of his being sold at any figure.

The status of the club makes a great deal of difference in cases of this kind.

For instance, Speaker was sold by the Boston Red Sox. While Speaker was undoubtedly the star of the club, there were several others not far behind him and the club could afford to take a chance on selling him for the price paid and depend on other stars to make the fans forget.

The breaking up of the Athletics was another example. Never a popular team, Mack found his attendance slipping to a point where he had better players and build up a new organization.

BENNY LEONARD WON'T JOIN UNLESS DRAFTED

Proves Himself a Four-Flusher and a Fake Advertisement.

When will Benny Leonard enlist? It has become a question of more than passing interest as Benny has twisted and squirmed ever since he made his original announcement of intentions, when he declared he would don the knaki immediately after he won the lightweight title.

Leonard has no intention of enlisting, never had in fact, and will not put on the olive drab unless he is caught by the draft.

Benny will not answer direct questions about enlistment. Billy Gibson, his manager and some others of his backers caused him to issue the statement after the Welsh bout, believing it to be "good policy." Whether or not it will prove a boomerang remains to be seen.

GREAT BETTORS OF THE RUNNING TURF

GEORGE E. SMITH
(“PITTSBURGH PHIL”)

The Levee
JOHN W. GATES

Last of Romantic Type Passes Away with Phil Dwyer — Fortunes Staked on a Single Race — Gates and the Memphis Poker Players.

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

THE recent death of Phil Dwyer, whose name was a household word among American boys and young men thirty years ago, brings to mind the passing of the glories of the sport of kings, the declining day of the running turf, of the race horse, of the jockey and of the big gambler.

The names of the Dwyers, Mike and Phil, are woven in the woof of the once great, now dying, American running turf. They owned great race horses—Hindoo, unbeatable; Hanover, Kingston, Rhadamanthus, Miss Woodford, George Kinney, Longstreet, Luke Blackburn, Tremont, Dewdrop, Pontiac, Passover, Ben Brush and Handspring. They employed great trainers—Jimmy Rowe, who now trains for H. F. Whitney; Frank McCabe and others. The great jockeys, Sims, Maher, Sloan, Talar, Griffith and scores of others.

Mike Dwyer was one of the mightiest plungers the betting ring has ever known. The Dwyers owned many great race tracks around New York, and were the creators of many classic stakes. They were among the strongest props of the American running turf in the days of its glory about New York, Chicago, Louisville and St. Louis.

Phil Dwyer's death is coincident with the beginning of the end with the running turf in the United States. It still exists in Kentucky, Canada, and sporadically in New York and Maryland. Canada has been a haven for men who like to race horses, but Canada is talking about stopping the sport this summer. It is a drain on the purses of the people, now busy with the expenses of war.

Virginia Mother of Racing.
Horse racing has been called the sport of kings, because, no doubt, none but kings could afford it. There are no kings in the United States, but there are many in the tradesmen richer than the kings of the eighteen century. So horse racing took hold in the United States, first in Virginia, to which it was fetched by the cavaliers, who were nobles in England and loved good horses, then in Kentucky, sound bone in race horses. California and other states grew fine horses, but they never endured. They did not get the lime they needed to make their bones firm. So they developed ringbones, spavins, splints and other bone diseases early in their careers.

The early Virginians and Kentuckians whither it was taken by the descendants of the Virginian gentlemen. From Kentucky it spread all over the West. The blue grass district around Lexington proved to be the greatest nursery of racing stock in the United States. Good grass, shade trees and limestone subsoil made it so. You must have lime in the grass and in the water if you want to put record horses on the English style—tor speed. Of course, they were not above betting, but they did not make racing a mere gambling tool, as was done outside of Virginia and Kentucky.

Planters would bet huge sums on their own horses, break themselves at times, but race meetings were only of a few days' duration and the spectators, in general, did not wager heavily. It was otherwise in New York, Chicago and San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans and other places where racing became popular. It was a sport among the Virginians and the Kentuckians. It was a gambling game everywhere else. It grew to such mighty proportions that it suborned politicians, controlled legislatures, and even assumed to nominate and to elect governors of states.

That was fifteen years ago.

Had racing endured and grown as business and finance has grown, it would be larger than the United States now. In fact, it was a question of whether racing would rule some of the states or the states should rule racing. As a general thing you will notice that when any sport or business assumes to dictate to a great state that sport or business loses. Racing attempted to nominate and to elect governors in New York, Illinois and Missouri, California and Louisiana. The people got up and smote racing, just as they smote Standard Oil and the railroads, both of which were, by some, believed greater than the United States. Governors Folk in Missouri, Hughes in New York and Dineen in Illinois dealt racing deadly blows.

Dwyers Honest Sportsmen.

The Dwyers were aces in the sport of kings, but they were butchers when they started. They had grown wealthy dealing in meat about Brooklyn. They drove good horses when they owned but one butcher wagon. The got and drove trotters later on. Then they got into running horses and they owned some wonders. They were honest men. No one can deny them that.

Mike Dwyer was a high roller of the first water, one of the biggest bettors the American turf ever saw. Phil, who died the other day, was not a big bettor. He played a safer and wiser game. He owned race tracks and good commercial properties. Phil Dwyer died a rich man. Mike died poor. That's the way most gamblers do die.

The Dwyers and their horses set the American youth on fire thirty years ago. Every boy in the land knew about Hindoo. Hanover was a great race horse. Miss Woodford was one of the greatest race mares that ever looked through a bridle. Kingston was a really great race horse. There has been few greater than Ber Brush. He was only of pony size, but he had the speed of the wind, the heart of a lion. George Kinney and Longstreet were great. Tremont, not great for distance, was one of the fastest sprinters that ever passed under a wire. The "red with blue sash" of the Dwyer brothers was known on every race track in the United States. Great were the horses that carried it, and great were the sums wagered upon them.

Mike Dwyer was one of the great plungers of the American turf. His famous losing wager of $100,000 made against $10,000 on Kingston in a match race with White Hat McCarthy's mare, Sunflower, was one of the great shocks sustained by the betting world. As the odds show, it was deemed a certainty that Kingston would win. So certain did the chances seem to be that every horse entered in the race, save the strange California mare, was withdrawn by his owner. Sunflower was in to take a work-out and second money. A clutch the bookmakers said. So they laid $1 against $10 that Kingston would lose. No bettors dare to take such short prices. You stand to lose big money if your horse is bested and if he wins your winnings are negligible. Dwyer liked to bet on his own colors. He was proud of his reputation. He was a natural born gambler. So he sent "Circular Joe" Vending into the ring to bet $100,000 against $10,000 that Kingston would win. The California mare beat the great gelding by a nose and Dwyer lost $200,000.

PATRICK HENRY MCCARRON

HANDSPRING

Backed His Judgment.
Dwyer never cared about the prices laid against his horses. If he thought they would win, he bet just the same. He died poor.

The Dwyer name fetches up recollections of other famous high rollers of the American turf. Of course, when you speak of the great turf gamblers everyone will cry "Pittsburgh Phil." It is true that George F. Smith, known as Pittsburgh Phil, was a big bettor. More than that, he died with $600,000 in cash to his credit in the bank.

Phil was a big bettor. Yet the late State Senator Patrick H. McCarron of the Borough of Brooklyn probably was the biggest bettor that the American turf ever has known. McCarron was political manager of the Standard Oil in the State of New York, and, generally, in Eastern States of the Union. His income was estimated at $2,000,000 a year. McCarron died relatively poor. It has been calculated that he wagered $1,000,000 every year. How much of this he won or how much he lost depends on the man who acted as betting agents for McCarron, the messengers who placed his money, became rich off the commissions they received from the bookmakers for bringing them the patronage and off the presents made them by McCarron when he won.

James A. Keene, the famous stock exchange speculator, owned many great race horses, but never wagered any fabulous sums on them. The Belmonts, father and son, also fancied the turf, but never became famous for their betting exploits. Harry Payne Whitney, probably the leading horse owner of today, always has had a stable of cracks, but never the reputation of being a bettor. In fact, Mike Dwyer and "Pittsburgh

Phil" were the only owners of horses who achieved fame as big bettors. Pittsburgh Phil did not become an owner in a large way. His horses, on the whole, were of moderate class, useful as betting tools, not famous as winners of great races. The Dwyers loved the turf for the sake of the horse. "Pittsburgh Phil" was a gambler pure and simple. McCarron did his betting in a quiet way. No great noise was made about any coups made by him. Very probably he did not engineer any great betting exploits. In volume of money wagered every day in the ring he exceeded all other men known to the betting sheds of the United States.

Gates the Plunger.

No doubt the most famous, for the time being, gamblers the American turf has known were John A. Drake and the late John W. Gates. Gates, who was the commissioner of the partnership, always made a noise when he won. The famous Royal Flush coup in England netted Drake and Gates $250,000. That is not an immense sum to win on one race. Many British, Hungarian and Russian noblemen have won and lost much more than $250,000 on a single race. "Tattersall's," the London establishment where responsible bettors meet to settle every Monday, has frequently seen more than $250,000 paid over by or to an individual bettor on a single race. Some of the South African diamond field millionaires have lost and won more than $250,000 on a single race. Then it must be understood that Drake and Gates bet only $25,000 to win $250,000 on Royal Flush. It will be seen that the wager was not in any wise extraordinary. The Esterhazy, Hungarian noblemen, who raced horses in England, have been known to wager as much as $200,000 on the result of a race. Many of the great Russian and Polish nobles, the Radzivils, for instance, have been high rollers. The famous sporting marquis of Waterford, a turf figure of the 1840s, bet as much as $50,000 on one race. That is twice as much as Drake and Gates bet when they made their world-resounding coup on Royal Flush, an evil-spirited horse, who was bought for a song from his English owners, and when trained by Enoch Wishard, the Yankee, proved tractable and ran a remarkable race.

There is no doubt, however, that Gates was a fearful gambler. It is told of him that when commissioned by Drake to bet on a certain horse in New York, Gates wagered $100,000 in a few days. When he told Drake what he had done, Drake suggested that Gates had bet too much money on very average sort of a horse, who had a very average sort of a chance. "Anything the matter with the horse, John?" asked Gates.

"No," said Drake, "but $100,000 is a lot of money to bet on anything."

"All right," replied Gates, relieved. "I was afraid something was the matter with the horse." Gates, a natural-born gambler, never thought of such a thing as overbetting. To his mind the bottom of your pocket or the end of your bank account or the limit of your credit was the only reason for ceasing to gamble.

$35,000 in Coin Toss.

Gates never knew when to stop betting. If he was not one of the big bettors of the American turf, he was one of the great gamblers of his era. It is related when Gates visited Memphis the members of the famous Chickasha Club, who had heard of his poker playing, got up a game for his entertainment. A syndicate subscribed $35,000, and three members of the club were chosen to play the money against Gates. The Chickasha Club has recently been dissolved. At the time of Gates' visit, 1893, it had almost its members some of the very finest poker players in the world. They had played cards up and down the Mississippi in the golden days, and did not feel that their superiors ever sat behind a bob-tailed flush.

"I am sorry, gentlemen," said Gates, when invited to play, "but it must be a short game. I must leave Memphis at 10 tonight."

"But, Mr. Gates," explained one of his hosts, "we can make it worth your while to stay longer. We have $35,000 to lose." "Can't possibly stay any longer, gentlemen," said Gates, "but I tell you what we'll do. We'll flip a coin for the $35,000." The Memphis men were artists, not gamblers. They wanted some entertainment for their time, and, anyhow, they were confident that their skill as poker players would not be overcome by Gates. They could not see the wisdom of taking a chance for their money. Poker looked like a sure thing to them.

Walton, the "Jubilee Juggins," a famous plunger of the British and American turfs, thought very little about wagering $50,000 on a race. Walton inherited his wealth from South African sources and bet it with royal hand. He did not live very long. Plungers never do live long. They may repress their nerves and stand cool as ice while horses are racing for their thousands. Just the same, they die young. Strain gets them. The life is easy enough; open air, short hours, healthy barns, but still as they may seem, they burn up inside when their money is being shot away by some boy, young, inexperienced, perhaps weakened by reducing to make the low weights required of a jockey.

$300,000 for a Horse.

C. E. Sevier, the Australian millionaire, who once owned the great English mare, Scepter, was a tremendous bettor. Sevier paid something like $200,000 for Scepter, when she was a 3-year-old. She won all the great races open to her sex and many open to horses of both sexes. Sevier was a terrific bettor. "I bet that he frequently wagered $50,000 on a race, and that he once wagered $100,000 on Scepter. The stewards of the English Jockey Club, the most exclusive organization in the world, did not like Sevier's free and easy colonial methods any more than they liked the winning ways of the Americans. Gates and Drake or the Yankee shrewdness of Enoch Wishard. It was intimated to Sevier that his room was preferable to his company. He took the hint, sold his racing stable and retired from the turf.

McCarron, Gates, Drake, Mike Dwyer and "Pittsburgh Phil" were the great bettors of the American turf. Gates and Drake were Westerners from Illinois and Missouri, but their major operations were confined to tracks around New York. They raced and bet, later, around Chicago. "Pittsburgh Phil" was, as his name indicates, from Pittsburgh, and was not known to Western tracks. Dwyer raced horses all over the country and his money was on them wherever they started.

The big bettors of the Middle West have not been numerous, unless you wish to enumerate Drake and Gates among them. Ed Corrigan, who was the major racing man of the Mississippi Valley, was a track owner and horse owner, and would bet on his own animals, but not vast sums. Corrigan was, in some respects, a commercial racing man, played the game "inside," was not above having a program made up to suit his own stable on his own tracks, so that he would win a majority of his own purses with his own horses, but he was, at bottom, a horseman who loved to race horses. He would bet, too, but not in excessing sums. Corrigan was quite as much a lover of horses as Mike Dwyer, but not quite so great a gambler. Ed Corrigan was enough of a sport to race horses for fun, or bet horses against horses just for sport. He owned a great stable of horses about 1901, and had some $25,000,000 invested in breeding farms, race tracks, etc.

The reform wave wiped out Corrigan's fortune. He is still racing horses in a small way in Kentucky and on the Canadian tracks. He went up and he went down with his ship. He loved a fine race horse and was, after all, a man.

Racing in California was part of the Southern Pacific system. Tom Williams, who was the chief legislative agent of the great railroad, was the sole owner of the race tracks about San Francisco. Williams took racing into the Legislature under the shield of the railroad interests and protected it for many years. Williams was not a big gambler. Nor did the Golden State turn out any great bettors to its race tracks.

Chinaman a Big Bettor.

The biggest bettor that ever came from California was a Chinaman, the famous, or infamous, "Little Pete." This smiling Celestial almost drove the bookmakers crazy when he won some $350,000 in a few weeks. Everything "Little Pete" bet on seemed to win. Eventually it was ascertained that the Chinaman had all the leading jockeys in his employ. His agents "arranged" the races, but his money, and the jockeys carried out orders to the letter. They saw that the races were run as "Little Pete" ordered that they should be run. Half a dozen leading jockeys were ruled off and "Little Pete" did not break any more bookmakers. He was killed some years after in a tong war in Chinatown, San Francisco.

It has been said that Chinese gamblers are always scrupulously honest until reduced into dishonesty by some white man. The inference is that the white brother put "Little Pete" on the wrong track.

"Pete" was a sport, though. He died game. Some tong forbade him to enter a certain district. Disobedience meant death. Pete was game. He went into a barber shop in the forbidden district. Some highbinder took his head off with one slash of a bolo.

MANY EAGER TO HELP IN RED CROSS WORK

Thirty-Six Employees at Elec- tric Works Form New Club.

Interest in Red Cross work in the city is steadily growing and a marked spirit of co-operation has been noted during the past few days. Not only are new donations coming in nearly every day but new organizations are being formed to aid in the great movement for humanity.

At the General Electric works the employees of building No. 17, third floor, have organized what will be known as the General Electric Red Cross club. Thirty-six members have already been enrolled and many more are in prospect. A committee from the club, composed of B. Kline, W. C. Blomberg and Glenn Culp called at the headquarters on East Berry street Wednesday afternoon and informed officials there of the new organization, and turned over $18, the first fund to be secured by voluntary subscriptions which will be made every week.

Another donation which made up in spirit what it may have lacked in size was that given by James Fairplay, a junior at the Hope hospital, who sent $2 to the headquarters, saying that he wished to do his bit in the great movement. Another donation of $14 was turned in by J. W. Grodman as the proceeds of a musical entertainment given recently in the Moose hall by church workers on the south side. It was also announced that the proceeds of the S. W. Stirk circle lawn social given on the lawn of Chalfant & Egley's a few weeks ago, was $33.60.

The Decatur auxiliary of the Fort Wayne chapter sent in ten new members Thursday morning. Officials at headquarters wish to emphasize that the public in general is invited to visit headquarters and see the work that is going on there, regardless of whether they wish to work or not. There is always room at headquarters for more workers, and no one should wait for a special invitation before offering their services.

Another evidence of the spirit of co-operation and desire to help was shown Wednesday when the Misses Perry, sisters employed at the Foster silkweaving factory, offered to work button holes in all of the garments being cut at the headquarters.

Applications are coming in for the first aid work and some new classes will be formed in this branch soon.

FRED C. EGGERS RESIGNS AS AGENT

Well Known Passenger Man
Quits the Wabash to Go to Bowser Works.

Fred C. Eggers, local passenger agent for the Wabash, has tendered his resignation effective August 1. Mr. Eggers has accepted a position in the accounting department of S. F. Bowser & Company and will assume the duties there immediately after being released by the Wabash company. Thus will pass out of railway circles one of the most courteous and efficient local passenger agents of the city. His retirement will be regretted not only by the men with whom he has been associated in railway work, but by the patrons of the Wabash with whom he came in touch in a business way. Mr. Eggers got into railway work accidentally. When he came to Fort Wayne a little over six years ago to visit relatives and friends he had no thought of entering railway work. He was then a school teacher in southern Missouri, having a few years previously graduated from the Missouri State Normal academy at Cape Girardeau. The office of night baggage-master at the Wabash depot was vacant at that time and Mr. Eggers was induced to accept it and work during the summer vacation months. Before they expired, however, he was induced to take the position of night ticket agent, which he held two years. Four years ago he was appointed local passenger agent to succeed Ed Itana, and he has held the office since, doing good work and making a friend of everyone with whom he came in touch. When asked why he was making the change, Mr. Eggers said: "Because the position with the Bowser people pays better than the office I am retiring from. I have no grievance against the Wabash; I received courteous treatment from all the officials and would remain only, as I said, the salary is much more at the Bowser's." Mr. Eggers has not been advised who would succeed him.

TAKES POSITION AT AKRON.

Ferman Harding Goes to the Firestone Rubber Company.

Ferman Harding, an electrician at the General Electric works, is considering a proposition to take a position with the Firestone Rubber company, Akron, O. He is off duty from the shop today, looking into the proposition. Mr. Harding has been at the General Electric works for a number of years, with the exception of the few months he was with the Goodyear Rubber company at Akron. That company has made several efforts to get him to return to their factory, but it seems the Firestone people made the most enticing offer. Mr. Harding is a tester in the testing department of the General Electric works and is considered a most efficient and capable man.

G. E. GIRLS AT TRI-LAKE.

A party of girls from the small motor department of the General Electric works motored to Tri-Lake Sunday and had a most enjoyable time. The day was devoted to boating, bathing, fishing and various games in the grove and proved a most happy event. In the party were the Misses Minnie and Luella Trost, Miss Helen Runyan, Miss Ida Davis, Miss Irma Schultz, Miss Emma Reilly, Miss Goldie Blake, Miss Loretta Meyer, Miss Marie Mounlin, Miss Viola Vachon, Miss Ruth Chidley and Florence Dixon, Miss Beulah Craig, Miss Carrie Cruise, Misses Flow and Clara Gilmore, Rose Eisenmacher, Miss Edna Rohrbach, Mrs. Hollenstein, Miss Amanda Hayes, Miss Beatrice Craig, Miss Edna Dixon and Messrs. Paul Meyers and B. Hollenstein.

EXPRESSMEN INJURED.

Harry Sanford, the night agent for the Wells-Fargo Express company, and C. Sheets, one of the expressmen at the Wabash depot, sustained painful injuries last night while in the act of loading a big machine. Mr. Sanford had the fingers of one of his hands painfully crushed and Mr. Sheets had some toes crushed by the heavy piece dropping on them when it slipped a few inches. The injuries of each are severe and will lay them up for two or three weeks.

INSPECTING SUB-DIVISION D.

Supt. Otto Schroll and his staff are out inspecting the tracks and stations on sub-division D, between this city and Clark Junction, and two days will be devoted to the work. Among the staff officers with Mr. Schroll are Trainmaster C. L. Hamilton, Division Engineer Guy Scott, Division Operator H. B. Reynolds, Master Mechanic E. E. Griest, Chief Dispatcher Harry Hart and W. A. Potthoff, the latter Mr. Schroll's stenographer.

HERE TO VISIT FATHER.

Orien Christen, with the Mitchell Motor company, of Racine, Wis., is here to spend a week with his father, C. E. Christen, of the east car shops, and other relatives. Mr. Christen is a pressman and until several months ago was employed in that capacity on a Fort Wayne newspaper. He resigned to go into the army and was in a training camp for some time, failing to pass the rigid physical examination. Then he took employment at Racine.

TAKING TRIP TO WISCONSIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Krubs, the former a cruder at the General Electric works, have started upon a trip to Wisconsin, where they will stop in several cities to see relatives. They will first go to Hartford, Wis., to visit their son, Matthew Krubs, a mechanic employed in auto works, who learned his trade in the Wabash shops in this city. Thence they will go to Racine and later to Kenosha, visiting his sister at the latter place.

CHAUFFEUR INJURED.

Rudolph Trautman, chauffeur on one of the big auto trucks of the General Electric company, was knocked from his seat and injured at 5 o'clock last evening, at the corner of West Creighton avenue and Hoagland avenue, when the machine he was driving was struck by an automobile. His injuries are not serious, but will keep him from work several days. The truck and the automobile were both damaged.

G. E. MEN FROM EAST ARE HERE.

Several gentlemen connected with the sales department of the General Electric company are here today conferring with Messrs. A. A. Serva and T. W. Behan, of the sales department of the local plant. Among the visitors are J. C. Moulin, of New York; J. A. Haraden, L. T. Robinson and F. G. Vaughan, of Schenectady, and F. P. Cox, of Lynn, Mass.

INSTRUCTING HOSTLERS.

Louis Deck, airbrake machinist at the Pennsylvania shops, went to Lima, O., this morning and will remain there a few days instructing the hostlers and others in the Pennsylvania roundhouse how to handle engines. The company is now handling a good many more engines at that roundhouse than formerly.

CHANGE IN PAY METHODS.

Beginning last night, the men employed in the night gangs at the Pennsylvania shops are receiving their wages between the hours of 7 and 8:30 in the evening. Formerly they had to come back to the shops in the morning to get their earnings. The new method is more acceptable.

CALLED TO SISTER'S BEDSIDE.

William Greisler, of the dynamo assembling department of the General Electric works, has gone to Detroit to see his sister. A message from that city yesterday stated that she was seriously ill.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

John Reidel, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, is sick and off duty. E. A. Weine, of the Pennsylvania boiler shop, is off duty on account of the illness of his wife.

T. P. Mueller, a Pennsylvania blacksmith, is taking a lay off to attend to some private business.

F. T. Huston, assistant engineer of motive power of the Pennsylvania, has returned from a business trip to Pittsburgh.

Wabash Trainmaster C. E. Wells, of Peru, was in the city this morning, looking after business for the company.

A. E. Criswell, material inspector for the Baltimore & Ohio company, is here, inspecting 300 car wheels at the Bass foundry.

John Weidner, a stenographer, has been transferred from the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop office to the machine shop office.

A new employee at the General Electric works is Paul E. Clear, who was formerly employed as a tank repairman at the Pennsylvania shops.

L. D. Haslop, of the Pennsylvania boiler shop, sprained his ankle Saturday and has not been able to work since.

A. L. Hadley, head of the engineering department of the General Electric works, left last night for Schenectady, N. Y., on business for the company.

Fred G. Duryee, chief of the wiring department of the General Electric works, has gone to Lake James, where he has a cottage, to spend the week with his folks.

Ellis Frazier, Clarence Biltz, H. E. Lotz, E. A. Meiner and L. W. Young are new employees in the operating department of the General Electric works.

Henry J. Peters, foreman of the tool supply department of the General Electric works, is taking a part of his vacation this week. He will be out three or four days.

W. H. King, stenographer in the valuation department of the Pennsylvania, who had been making visits in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, is home this morning.

Malus Sweeney, machinist, resumed his duties in the airbrake department of the Pennsylvania shops this morning, after spending a few days at Clear Lake.

The Apparatus and the Small Motor department teams of the G. E. Sunset league, are playing at Foster park, and the Warehouse and the Apprentice teams are playing at Lawton park this afternoon.

J. W. Wall, a member of Foreman Michael Krock's gang, in the shop yards of the Pennsylvania, will be off duty several days as the result of an accident yesterday. He had his hand and wrist hurt.

J. Frank Kelker and A. B. Huff,

who have been engaged in front-end locomotive tests on the Erie and Ash-tabula division of the Pennsylvania, are here for a week-end stay and will go east again Sunday night.

H. A. Brinsley, motive power inspector for the Pennsylvania, returned from Pittsburgh this morning, after being there several days on business. He went to Chicago this afternoon and from that city will go east tonight.

J. J. Bryle and A. J. Bobay resumed work at the Pennsylvania paint shop this morning. They had been off duty on account of the death and funeral of their uncle, an aged farmer residing near Academie.

W. F. Rathenberg, a boilermaker's helper, and H. Garrett, a fitter, at the Pennsylvania shops, have resigned. Rathenberg goes to the Berghoff brewery to work and Garrett returns to his old home in Ohio because of the serious illness of his mother.

D. B. Schwarz, of the Pennsylvania car machine shop, is laying off today to decide a most patriotic question. The result will probably be that he will enlist in the army. He has not decided what department to go into and is investigating the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Haefling, of Lexington, Ky., are guests of William Donnel, the elevator man in the laboratory building at the General Electric works. Mr. Haefling formerly resided here and was employed in the General Electric works.

The General Electric works disposed of 700 tickets to the chautauqua to its employees. Harry Daals has the honor of selling the largest number of tickets, he disposing of 192. Gurlihan and O'Brien were a tie for the second place, each selling 100 tickets.

A. B. Sheckler, of the tin and pipe shop of the Pennsylvania, will begin a two weeks vacation Sunday, when he will go to his old home, Bucyrus. He will make several trips from that city to Put-in-Bay and other points on Lake Erie.

Nearly every railroad in this part of the country has women on the payroll, but so far as learned only one has employed women as ticket agent in important stations. Miss Clarye Rodabaugh has been appointed assistant passenger agent of the Big Four at Columbus, O.

In the Pennsylvania tool room are five young men who are liable to draft under the conscription law. Their numbers have been "chalked" on the wall, under a skull and crossbones sign, so that the result if any of the party are "hit" in the drawing can be readily seen by their shop comrades.

One of the large new engines of the Wabash tore a portion of the Peru roundhouse down yesterday when the hostler attempted to back it into the building. The door was too small and when the wall was caved in, one of the falling bricks struck Fred Gripke, a machinist, and fractured his shoulder blade.

James Russell, whose father died suddenly in Chicago last week, has returned from that city, where he attended the funeral, and has resumed his duties as clerk to Foreman J. A. Foster, of the Pennsylvania airbrake room. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schultz have also returned from Chicago, where they attended the funeral of Mr. Russell, who was her father.

The General Electric company has added two electrical trucks to its equipment. These trucks are of the latest design, equipped with electrical hoisting apparatus, which enables them to drop the platform, slip the truck under the piece it is desired to move and then to raise the platform to normal height and raise the load from the blocks upon which it had formerly rested.

The order from the war department concerning the use of dump cars on the railroads is having its effect upon improvements in various parts of the country. At Tiffin, O., some improvement is consuming considerable crushed stone from the quarries at Maple Grove and when the Nickel Plate put the order concerning cars into effect, it stopped the movement of stone to Tiffin. Mayor Keppel complained to Supt. W. F. Waterson and the latter has written that he will endeavor to resume carrying stone to Tiffin, but will have to use other than dump cars.

HOLD EXAMINATIONS

HERE JULY 24-26

Men Will Be Selected for Second Camp by Government Officers.

Government examiners for the applicants to the second officers' reserve training camp will be in this city July 24 to 26. Notice to this effect has been sent to all of the applicants who are recommended by the local committee under Captain E. H. Kilbourne. The examiners will have their headquarters at the Hotel Anthony, and the examinations will be held either there or at a place to be designated by the examiners. Offices will be open from 3 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon.

Owing to the fact that the quota for Indiana for the second camp is but 448, it is probable that the examination by the government officers will be somewhat rigid, as the utmost discrimination will be used in selecting the men. About 200 applicants were recommended from the Fort Wayne district alone. The second camp starts August 27.

Captain E. H. Kilbourne, chairman of the local examining board, and E. H. Wagner, secretary, went to Indianapolis, Thursday, to confer with officials of the training camp in regard to the applicants that have been recommended from here, and to discuss work to be done by the board in the future.

J. W. Wall, a member of Foreman Michael Krock's gang, in the shop yards of the Pennsylvania, will be off duty several days as the result of an accident yesterday. He had his hand and wrist hurt.

J. Frank Kelker and A. B. Huff,

Room is Being Thoroughly
Renovated and Repaired
During Vacation.

Allen county's circuit court will re-open on Monday, September 5, and according to indications a very busy session will be held. Many new cases have been filed since court adjourned and with other cases which have been pending, it is likely that a rush business will be on for some little time after the reopening.

During the vacation workmen are at work renovating and repairing the entire room. All the walls and the ceiling have been cleaned and the cracks in the marble slabs are being fixed. The furniture is also being given a general overhauling.

Name Appraisers.
Judge Carl Yapple, of the superior court, named Will Kaiser, A. C. Goeke and George Miller as appraisers to fix the price at which the city may sell a supply of potassium permanganate. This is an unusual action, made necessary by a law which requires that the courts appoint an appraiser if the city wants to sell anything valued at $100 or more.

Your country calls you." A large sign bearing the words was found in the center of the East cemetery here.

CAMP FRANCO-AMERICAN

Room is Being Thoroughly
Renovated and Repaired
During Vacation.

Allen county's circuit court will re-open on Monday, September 5, and according to indications a very busy session will be held. Many new cases have been filed since court adjourned and with other cases which have been pending, it is likely that a rush business will be on for some little time after the reopening.

During the vacation workmen are at work renovating and repairing the entire room. All the walls and the ceiling have been cleaned and the cracks in the marble slabs are being fixed. The furniture is also being given a general overhauling.

Name Appraisers.
Judge Carl Yapple, of the superior court, named Will Kaiser, A. C. Goeke and George Miller as appraisers to fix the price at which the city may sell a supply of potassium permanganate. This is an unusual action, made necessary by a law which requires that the courts appoint an appraiser if the city wants to sell anything valued at $100 or more.

Lie Costs Him a Wife.
Joseph Burekal told his wife before they were married that he was drawing a handsome salary each week. After marriage the wife discovered that he was not earning much. Wednesday upon the strength of this misrepresentation Mrs. Burekal was granted a divorce.

Restores Her Name.
The decree and the restoration of her maiden name of Smethwest was granted to Grace Rosen in her suit for divorce from Ira Rosen in superior court.

Petition Declined.
The petition of Pearl Collins to secure the custody of the children who were given to her husband when they were divorced was not granted by Judge Yapple. To Sell Pepe Farm.

Emil Pepe, as executor, will offer for sale the August Pepe farm of seventy acres, located on the Lincoln highway five miles east of New Haven. The sale will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Suit on Promissory Notes.
Louis C. Strodel complains that William C. Lichtsinn has failed to pay two promissory notes which the plaintiff holds and asks that the court give him a judgment of $2,000.

Luther W. Whitbeck, carpenter, to Annie Drury.

THE CALL OF THE WAR.
Danville, Ill., July 19.—While other towns throughout the country are on the alert for anti-American demonstrations, Danville authorities are seeking persons who posted the patriotic appeal: "Awake. Your country calls you." A large sign bearing the words was found in the center of the East cemetery here.

Church Notes.
The Woman's Society of the Third Presbyterian church will have a potluck at 8 o'clock Friday evening at Lakeside park. If the weather is unfavorable the picnic will be held in the church and the afternoon will be spent in Red Cross work.

SAYS T. R. CANERASE MISUNDERSTANDINGS

Maurice Hewlett Wants Him
Sent Over to Promote Good Feeling.

BY KENNETH W. PAYNE.
Staff Special.

London, July 19.—"Send Roosevelt to Britain on a mission of propaganda."

This is England's message to America right now. It was voiced by Maurice Hewlett, famous poet, essayist and interpreter of the soul of the English people.

Do the British people understand America? Are they in full accord with the great ideas for which America is fighting? How much real help do they expect from America's intervention?

MAURICE HEWLETT

These are among the most vital questions of the hour. I asked Maurice Hewlett to answer them, because as a great patriot, student of history and believer in democracy, he can speak for a vast body of British liberal opinion.

"It is a fact," Hewlett said, "that the English have understood America as little as the Americans have understood England."

"Regardless of all accusations of imperialism hurled at England, it is by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. J. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

GERMAN INDUSTRY SUFFERS.

Amsterdam, July 20.—According to the Cologne Volks-Zeitung the annual report of the Hartung Iron and Steel works of Berlin shows a loss of 1,410,000 marks, which is equivalent to six-sevenths of its capital. More than a third of its total capital has been lost in the last five months.

LABOR WILL GET BIG SUM.

London, July 20.—If the demand for a ten-shilling advance in the wages of half a million semi-skilled and unskilled workers in the engineering industry, which is now being considered by the committee of production, is conceded, the employers will have to pay an additional 13,000,000 pounds sterling a year in wages.

WHERE TO SPEND YOUR VACATION.

The Seashore.

The seashore is a nifty place to spend your vacation and your last six months' savings. The salt water is very helpful to the health for those who want to be old fashioned by going in it. Bathing suits are being worn more than ever this year on the sand. Occasionally a boat tips over and a snapshot can be taken of someone actually in the water. The hotels and restaurant rates will even get a squawk out of a millionaire. Nothing is more dead than a rainy day on the seashore and they usually come by the fistful while you are there.

You will be made to think of a burlesque show when you see the girls cantering back and forth on the sands in their bathing walking suits. When leaving be sure and buy up all the souvenir junk of shells, banners, spoons, etc., to make it look as though you really had a good time.

STRIPES OF NEW KIND FOR NEGROES MAKING OFFICERS OF 'EM AT CAMP

RIGHT, DR. GEORGE W. CABAN-NIS, WHO STARTED NEGRO TRAINING CAMP MOVEMENT; LEFT, DR. JOSEPH H. WARD, WHO GAVE UP LUCRATIVE PRACTICE TO BECOME ARMY OFFICER.

Des Moines, Ia., July 20.—More than 1,200 negroes are drilling and training 10 hours a day and studying every night, at Fort Des Moines, in order that the negro shall play his part in the war.

At first the citizens of Des Moines were not overjoyed at the prospect of a negro training camp next door. But the men have made good with their white neighbors. Des Moines residents quickly recognized their quality. And now when a negro student-officer walks down the Des Moines streets people turn to look at him and praise his bearing and behavior.

Some of the most effective soldiers in the civil war were negroes. It was a negro regiment which bore the brunt of our Mexican expeditionary work. They stood their ground and died like heroes in the massacre of Parral. But—all these were negro SOLDIERS, officered by white men. The

TRIVERS CLOTHES

OUTVALUE ALL "SALE" CLOTHES AT THIS PRICE.

"Sales" are usually held for one of two reasons—oftimes for both—either the original prices asked were much too high (and the Fort Wayne public isn't easily fooled these days) or the "Fancy" patterns now "reduced" were passed up by the same discriminating public.

You rarely see "reductions" on Blue Serges, or Blacks, or Evening Clothes or Shantung Silk Suits—or in fact anything that you really want or need for Summer wear or enjoyment—No, No; those will be reduced in September or October or sometime when you don't want them.

All of which leads to the fact that there is no good reason for your buying "marked down" Suits when you want to buy new, seasonable, stylish Trivers Clothes, made up in 1/4 Silk Lined, Silk Sleeved Models, that are exactly right for Summer wear and service—FOR LESS MONEY.

Our method of doing away with such items of expense as High Rents, Middlemen's profits and "Sales" enables us AT ALL TIMES to outvalue all others at $15.00.

a fundamental fact that in this war—the most popular we ever had—the British people are fighting not only in self-defense, but also for the very ideals that have drawn in the United States.

"Despite this fundamental identity of aim, I do not doubt there lurks here and there in America a lingering suspicion of Great Britain; while over here some still ask how sincere the United States will be.

"To stamp out these misunderstandings America should send several speakers of great ability to Britain. And why not have Roosevelt head the mission? He is spoiling for something to do, and would be received here with boundless enthusiasm. In no way could he help more in the cause of the allies.

"This war has proved there must never again be slaughter like it. My great hope is an Anglo-Saxon league to enforce peace, founded on mutual understanding between the people as well as the agreement of governments. An American propaganda in Britain is necessary to such an understanding. "Before America's intervention, the war really was not so great a thing as the Russian revolution. America's entry has made it the most important thing in history.

"A league to enforce peace is not well understood here yet, but an Anglo-Saxon league would be, and would attract other nations."

Women can make a quarter pint of wonderful lemon beauty cream for few cents. Nothing so good!

soften, smoothen, and whiten the face, neck, arms, and particularly the hands when chafed, red or rough there is nothing better than lemon juice, but pure lemon juice is too highly acid and often irritating. A splendid lotion is prepared in a moment by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Be sure to strain the lemon juice through a cloth so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this creamy lotion will stay sweetly fragrant and fresh for months. Any grocer will supply the lemons and any druggist or toilet counter will sell you three ounces of orchard white for a few cents.

This is the best lotion you could use. Massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and see for yourself. It helps remove tan, sallowness, and freckles, and every girl knows that lemons are used to bleach and whiten the skin.
